Pension Plan Unveiled

OTTAWA (CP) — The third version of the complex Canada Pension Plan took legislative form Monday in the Commons. It is a brute of a bill, a half-inch thick and packed with implications for the lives and livelihood of 5,000,000 Canadians.

Introduction of the 125-section bill, one of the longest and most complex pieces of legislation ever seen in Parliament, came after a four-hour debate on the preliminary resolution stage during which opposition MPs pledged careful scrutiny but voiced no immediate objections.

These are the next steps: Second reading, or approval in principle, will be sought in the Commons. At this stage government speakers will deal with the financial and economic underpinning of the scheme. The government Monday night declined to reveal the reports on these aspects of the plan, though the actuarial survey already is in government hands.

Next step is to set up a joint Senate-Commons committee to study the bill in detail. It will have before it the detailed actuarial and economic reports. The committee likely will call expert witnesses, including officials of the insurance companies now administering private pension plans.

If both houses of Parliament subsequently give the bill final passage, the legislation will take effect in 1966 and will apply everywhere except in Quebec, which will have its own similar plan, or in any other province that sets up substantially the same scheme.

PLAN COMPULSORY

The federal plan will be compulsory for an estimated 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 Canadians. Forced to contribute will be all employees over 18 earning more than $50 a month or $600 a year, and all self-employed persons taking in more than $800 annually.

Rates of contributions and benefit levels are the same as those spelled out in the government's white paper last August. Briefly, the plan would start this way:

The first $600 of annual earnings is exempt. On the rest up to a $5,000-a-year maximum, the contribution rate is 3.6 per cent. This is shared equally by employees and employers but paid alone by the self-employed. For an employee earning at least $5,000 it means payments of $6.60 a month. These start in 1966.

Full benefits begin in 1976, though some are available at reduced levels in the first 10 years. The benefits will come in one cheque, but take two forms: the contributory pension, plus the flat-rate old age security pension financed as at present out of taxes.

At age 65, a person retiring becomes eligible for the contributory pension which is 25 per cent of the average earnings on which contributions are made. Thus a person earning as much or more than the $3,000 income ceiling would receive about $104 monthly.

SECOND PENSION

In addition, the old age security payment which now is $75 a month at age 70 can be claimed, in reduced amounts, starting at age 65. It would be $51 at age 65. Thus a person retiring at age 65 would get a total of $155. If he waited until he was 70, he would get $179 a month.

This is how benefits will be paid in the 10-year transition period between 1966 and 1976: After one year of operating the plan, a person who has contributed in 1966 and is 68 in 1967 will get a pension equal to 10 per cent of the full level. In each subsequent year, the age comes down until age 65 is reached in 1970 and, at the same time, the pension rises to the full level.

MOTHER, 7 CHILDREN ESCAPE FLAMES AGAIN

By LESLIE MILLIN

Christine Crosby and her seven children are again homeless because of fire.

A neighbor saved two of Mrs. Crosby's brood from the fire that ripped through their home at 2741 Victor just before 3 a.m. today.

Mrs. Crosby moved into the house this summer after a fire destroyed her last home at 1020 Queens on July 2.

"It's just terrible, to happen again so soon," she told the Times this morning.

The fire began in a garage near the house, and wind carried the flames to ignite the house's shingled exterior. Wood had been stored in the garage.

ARSON?

The fire department would not say how the fire began, but it is understood that the possibility of arson is being investigated.

The fire loss was estimated by Fire Chief John Abbott at about $3,000.

Suren Sather, 2743 Victor, carried two of the children from the burning home while flames charred the gable of his own next-door home a few feet away.

Mr. Sather, who will be 66 on Thursday, beat on the Crosby front door to rouse the family as his wife phoned the fire department.

"She came to the door crying 'Save my children,'" Mr. Sather said.

"PRETTY HOT"

"I ran into the back bedroom looking for kids, and it was getting pretty hot in there."

"I pulled one of the smallest ones out of a bed, then happened to look in another bed across the room, and there was another one, so I carried both of them out."

"Anyone would have done it."

Mr. Sather was awakened by his wife, who saw light flickering on their bedroom wall from the flames outside the window.

She had been awakened by the noise, which she first thought was hail.

He paused only long enough to pull on his trousers before running out to investigate.

QUET NIGHT

Just a few hours before, Norwegian-born Mr. Sather had returned home from his job at Dockyard.

"There was no one around when I got home at about 12:15 or 12:20—it was as quiet as in the grave," he said.

Mrs. Crosby said this morning "I wasn't doing much thinking at that hour."

"My eldest boy, Johnny woke me up when he heard the knocking at the door."

"He didn't know what it was, but he knew something was wrong."

Mrs. Crosby's other six children are:

Christine, the baby, 1; twins Penny and Paul, 2; Timothy, 3; Deborah, 6; and Robert, 7. Johnny is 10. He would not continue on Page 2

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson has accepted an invitation to visit the Canadian capital Dec. 9-10. Prime Minister Pearson announced today.

The new British leader will come here after conferring for two days with President Johnson in Washington.

Meanwhile, Mr. Wilson said in London today Premier Chou En-lai of China has sent him a message proposing a major power summit meeting to discuss nuclear disarmament.

Wilson told the House of Commons his Labor government is consulting with allied nations before answering the proposal.

MUDSLIDE FURY RIPS 9 HOMES; WOMAN KILLED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rain was predicted today in southern California, where storm-triggered mudslides struck Monday with avalanche fury at areas saved earlier from dry-season brushfires.

One mudslide sluiced down a fire-denuded canyon and into a residential street, sweeping a fleeing housewife with it.

Police say Mrs. Aimee Miller may have been carried three-quarters of a mile and entombed in a catch basin along with cars, furniture and house-mass of mud.

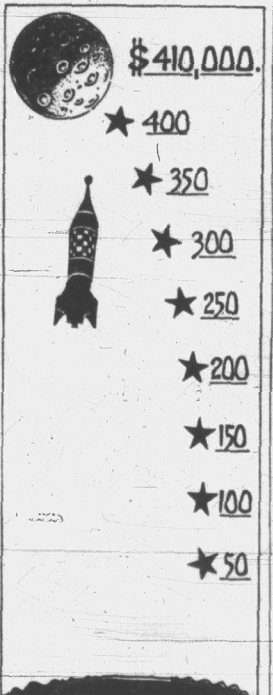

Her husband, William, 49, singer Frank Sinatra's accompanist, tried to save his wife from their crumbling home, and also was swept away. Firemen rescued him as he clung to a car in the swirling flood.

Their daughter, Meredith, 17, climbed uphill to safety as the family's canyon home twisted and cracked under the onslaught of mud.

The Miller home was destroyed and eight others damaged in the Verdugo Hills section of Burbank, a Los Angeles suburb, which is near the scene of a major brush fire in the foothills last spring.

"All it takes is a good down-pour on open ground, where the native brush has been burned away," a weather bureau official said. "The water runs off, instead of sinking in. Even a moderate, localized shower can cause severe damage in the areas below."

Monday's rains were accompanied, in West Los Angeles and coastal regions, by a tornado—a rarity in southern California—which shredded patios, unshingled roofs, faced a house trailer in the opposite direction and scattered a manufacturer's store of 40,000 artificial Christmas trees over a three-block area.

ENTERING final stages of moonshot is rocket of Greater Victoria United Appeal campaign, now closing in on $410,000 goal. At noon today the total was $359,234, which is 87.6 per cent. Appeal officials will continue the drive until the rocket lands bang on target.

REACTION TO BYELECTION

NDP Win 'Indicates Trend' Says Douglas

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said Monday night there are 40 to 50 constituencies in Ontario which might have produced the upset victory of the NDP in Waterloo South riding.

He told reporters that while he isn't predicting NDP victories in that many ridings in the next general election, the resounding defeat of the Liberal candidate and the smashing victory for the NDP "indicates a trend."

"We fought the election by saying that Waterloo South had a chance to speak for all the people of Canada in telling Parliament to get down to some bread-and-butter issues. The voice of the electorate in this matter has been heard, and I hope it will be heard by Parliament."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said through a spokesman that he was naturally disappointed at his party not regaining the old Conservative seat.

MENZIES must be prepared

'Necessary To Meet War Risk'

CANBERRA (CP) — Australia will draft men for peacetime overseas service for the first time in its history, Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies announced tonight.

Menzies also announced greatly expanded defence expenditure for the next three years in the light of "an increased range of likely military situations we must be prepared to face."

He said these situations resulted from recent Indonesian policies and actions and the growth of Communist influence and armed activity in Laos and South Viet Nam.

Menzies was speaking in Parliament. Indonesia has declared a confrontation policy towards Malaysia and has declared the 18-month-old federation of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah, is a neo-colonialist plot in South-east Asia.

"If Indonesian attacks continue Malaysia may find it intolerable to confine defensive measures to the guarding of Malaysia's shores and jungles against Indonesian intrusion," Menzies warned.

"These Indonesian attacks may create a real risk of war."

"We must prepare for all eventualities including the control and if necessary defence of the frontier between Papua and West New Guinea," he said.

BOLSTER DEFENCES
Menzies said selective national service would be introduced, "comprehensive" additions would be made to the weapons, equipment and facilities of the armed services, and the defences of Australian New Guinea and Papua will be strengthened.

Australia governs the eastern half of New Guinea. Indonesia holds the western half.

Menzies said defence expenditure already planned would rise during the next three years by £404,000,000. Australian ($977,680,000) to £1,220,000,000 ($2,952,400,000).

The permanent army strength would be increased from the current 22,750 men to 33,000. This would be achieved by the call-up of 4,000 men in the 20-year-old age group about the middle of next year, and thereafter by 6,900 annually for two years of full-time duty followed by three years in the reserve.

They would have to train for six months before being sent overseas should the need arise.

The navy would be strengthened by the major modernization of the aircraft carrier Melbourne, which would be equipped with 14 Grumman S.E. Tracker anti-submarine aircraft. Other additions would be a fleet oil fuel replenishment ship, additional minesweepers, more patrol craft, the establishment of a coastal security force in Papua, New Guinea, and the development of a submarine base on the Australian mainland.

The strength of the Pacific Island Regiment in New Guinea would be increased to 3,500 by 1968.

Menzies said a new battle group would be established in northern Queensland and the Special Air Service Regiment in Perth doubled to four squadrons.

Vets Pensions To Be Raised

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterans Minister Teillet announced in the Commons today that three classes of veterans pensions will be increased shortly at an annual cost of $33,750,000.

Mr. Teillet said pensions to disabled veterans or their families, attendants allowances for chronically ill veterans and war veterans allowances for aged veterans of low income will all be increased retroactively to Sept. 1, 1964.

The byelections were regarded as a test of the NDP's attempts to find a middle ground between the contending Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

NDP sources here said their campaign centred on the theme that the Conservatives proved inadequate to govern from 1957-62 and the Liberals were proving no more effective.

In addition, the British Labour party's general election victory may have convinced some voters that if the usually stable British voter could give Labor his confidence the New Democrats, who have a kind of affinity for the British Labour party, might be tried.

FRANCE, W. GERMANY

'Objectives Incompatible'

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
(Third of a Series)

BONN — Western Europe reels today under the paradox at once ironic, almost incredible and very dangerous to the free world. It is the work of President Charles de Gaulle, who prides himself on his clear French logic and yet, in pursuing it ruthlessly, has imperilled, if he has not destroyed, his own grand strategy.

As reported in an earlier dispatch, the West German government, De Gaulle's most irritating distraction and baffling ally, tries to argue that Germany and France can soon be reconciled in basic policy and make their new bilateral treaty work.

Astounding Feat

The truth is that the present objectives of the two most powerful European states remain incompatible, though their solid friendship, after three great wars, is indeed an astounding feat of human intelligence.

From the German viewpoint (while this is denied publicly) De Gaulle threatens to ruin Europe's unity and prosperity. The wide gulf of principle dividing the old enemies and current friends may be disguised by diplomatic language but is plain to everyone.

France stands for the unification of Europe — on French terms. De Gaulle sincerely believes in a continent united, strong and free, a projection and lengthened shadow of French civilization.

This Europe of strength and grandeur would not be governed, however, by any joint parliament or other collective machinery. It would not be the confederation envisaged by the Treaty of Rome that De Gaulle reluctantly signed but a loose association of independent governments.

No lot of French sovereignty would be surrendered to any other state, or collection of states. And the purpose of this imaginary association would be to build a "third force" as powerful as the United States or Russia.

Three Conflicts

In three respects the Gaullist dream conflicts directly with the aspirations and, indeed, the necessities of the West German republic.

First, Germany takes the Rome Treaty in liberal terms. It desires a common European government and parliament as a final goal. It hopes to merge both the old aggressive German spirit and the new spirit of smug, comfortable materialism into the exciting adventure of a unique experiment.

Second, Germany does not want and simply cannot afford to associate itself with any "third force" which, by its nature, would be antagonistic primarily to the United States and, incidentally, to Britain.

Third, Germany sees the whole momentum of European integration, both economic and political, ebbing out under the pressure of intransigent French nationalism. By vetoing the British entry into the Common Market De Gaulle not only splits Europe on the English Channel; he sapped the energies and enthusiasm of the mainland.

Halted Growth

Apart altogether from the immediate dispute about farm prices that may disrupt the Kennedy Round of tariff reduction, De Gaulle's veto on Britain instantly arrested the Common Market's inward growth.

A sense of despair, an inability to make decisions, a feeling of enervation and futility can be found today in all the European capitals outside France, most of all in Italy, the Market's soft underbelly.

Thus De Gaulle has thwarted the very thing he desires most — the strength of Europe, the "third force" and the regnant place of France within it. His own dream is the first victim of his Gaullist pride.

After a long period of shock and hopelessness, the German government, with typical Teutonic stubbornness, refuses to accept this state of vacuum and inertia. By one means or another, regardless of logic, it proposes to start the Common Market and the hope of ultimate political integration moving again.

This is the meaning of the current "initiative" rated so highly and discussed so mysteriously by German public spokesmen. In fact, its contents are not difficult to guess and are hardly hidden in private conversation.

Alternative

Since contemporary France will not consider the confederation of Europe, Germany is proposing a project far short of that ideal. Its latest overture, now before the other Common Market members, is actually no more than an expansion among them all of the limping German-French treaty by which the two signatories are supposed to catch regularly and protect each other's vital interests.

The exact form of the German "initiative" matters little. Even if it is largely fictitious and ceremonial its purpose will be served if it restores Europe's sense of forward movement and helps to melt the stalemate between Paris and Bonn.

In plainer terms, the chasm dividing basic French and German policy is unbridgeable at present. The two objectives of a European confederation and a loose alliance of national sovereignties cannot be reconciled so long as De Gaulle rules France and refuses to dilute its supposed grandeur.

Nevertheless, German leaders of all parties see two reasons for cautious optimism.

"De Gaulle," one of Germany's highest officials told me, "may look immovable but he isn't. He's very flexible, as he proved by abandoning Algeria. The only difference between him and other heads of state is that he always seems to advance when he retreats."

"No, he will do what he has to do, pragmatically, and with a wonderful look of consistency even if he denies today everything he said yesterday. In the end he'll have to accept the facts of life and the chief fact, for Germany, is that we, and all other Europeans, are absolutely dependent on the United States, not France, for survival. America defends us. No one else can."

Await 'Event'

This judgment of De Gaulle may or may not be true but in any case it is temporary because he is mortal. Knowing that he will soon disappear in the course of nature, the German politicians (like those of Washington) are patiently awaiting that event and the changed, incalculable France certain to follow it.

Meanwhile, as practical men, they work with the tools at hand. They will be satisfied if some modest arrangement pushes future continental unity forward an inch or two in the direction of a happier post-Gaullist Europe, if the Common Market's old momentum can be recaptured even by a diplomatic fiction.

For the moment, as they see it, Germany's leaders, with their supporters in Holland, Belgium and Italy, are really trying to save De Gaulle from himself.

In doing so, they have lately encountered an old problem in a new guise and a new problem wearing deceptively the initials M.E.F.

FIRST CALL

with Bon-Wicks

"Cheer up dear . . . There's always the Legion."

Continued from Page 1 time the percentage of benefit rises by 10 percentage points a year until the full benefit is paid in 1976.

For example, a person who retires at age 65 in 1970 would get a contributory pension equal to 40 per cent of the full benefit. If he was contributing at the maximum earnings level, that would work out to $41.60 a month. Atop this would be the old age security benefit of $51 at age 65, for a total of $92.60.

However, these are only illustrations. Actually, the income ceiling which starts at $5,000 a year would be adjusted under the bill in line with average national earnings. If it goes up, of course, the maximum benefits would rise.

As another safeguard against

having benefits in future sapped by inflation, both the contributory and flat-rate pensions would be adjusted in line with changes in the cost of living. They could only go up; the bill forbids reductions even if prices decline.

There follows in the bill the complicated formulas for payments to widows and orphans, to contributors who become disabled and unable to work, to those who do not work and thus don't contribute all their lives, for those between 65 and 70 who are retired but still earn money from regular work, and so on.

A basic principle of the bill is that everyone who contributes is eligible for a benefit. That includes the girl who contributes before she marries, as well as working wives. When they reach 65 they will get a pension based on earnings averaged over the whole period.

Another fundamental provision in the bill: No Parliament could change the general levels of benefits or contributions without the consent of two-thirds of the provinces having two-thirds of the country's population. That formula would include any province with its own similar plan, such as Quebec.

The federal plan is meshed with Quebec's to ensure portability—that is, the ability to carry pension benefits from one province to another.

The only persons exempt are employees of the armed forces and the RCMP—they have their own plans for retirement earlier than normal elsewhere—and a few others such as employees of foreign governments, or wives employed by their husbands.

After introducing the legislation, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told reporters that while the provinces were consulted in drawing-up the scheme they have not yet seen the detailed bill.

She said they likely will make their views known in letters to Prime Minister Pearson. She added that she knew of no plan to raise the issue at another federal-provincial conference.

In its white paper last August, the government estimated that in the 10th year of the plan, 1976, there would be a reserve of about $4,000,000,000. There has been no estimate of how that reserve would shrink after that date, when full benefits start.

Revenue Minister E. J. Benson told a press conference that in the first year contributions would total close to $426,000,000 and that administration expenses, heavy at the outset, would be about $12,000,000.

That would leave more than $400,000,000 available for investment, as the bill provides, in provincial securities.

FIRE

After she was burned out in July, friends and well-wishers started a drive that supplied her with food and clothing and furniture, and found a new house for her.

"It was such a nice house, and we were getting so well settled into it," said Mrs. Crosby.

"I don't know about the house, but there was no insurance on the stuff in it."

All the back of the house was charred, and the garage was destroyed.

Blackened beams this morning were draped over the clothes line which still had children's clothes on it.

The front of the house was not damaged by the fire. Four quarts of milk had been delivered to the door this morning.

BAC Rejects China Sales

LONDON (AP)—The makers of a famed British airliner striving for more American sales, have rejected a tentative Chinese bid to buy their long-range jet airplane.

China's inquiry about the possible purchase of VC-10 airliners—with a range long enough for a Peking-Havana link-up—was made last spring, a spokesman for the British Aircraft Corporation said today.

But, the spokesman added, BAC is not considering any such deal and the Chinese have been so advised.

Big Threat From Fog; Six-Vote Edge

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson has won his first big House of Commons test — and it seems his biggest threat came from fog.

Eighteen fog-delayed members of Parliament from Scotland trooped into the House Monday night in time to give Wilson's Labor government a six-vote edge on a Tory motion condemning steel nationalization.

The fog, and illness among some Labor MPs, probably threw more of a scare into Labor strategists than the somewhat wavering attack launched on steel renationalization by the Tory opposition, led by Iain Macleod.

When the vote finally came, the socialists tallied 307 compared with 301 for the Tories in the 630-member House.

Twenty-two members were absent or did not vote. The House Speaker votes only to break a tie. The nine Liberals in the House supported the Conservatives. The six-vote margin, which normally might be considered a close squeak, did not look so small to Wilson since his over-all margin is only five with all members present.

No steel bill has yet been introduced and Power Minister Frederick Lee, presenting Labor's case in the debate, gave few details, except to express the socialist conviction that:

"Only public ownership of the main part of the industry will make it possible to remedy the industry's shortcomings with the speed and determination which the national interest demands."

Macleod's speech was his first front-bench appearance since last year when he refused service in Sir Alec Douglas-Home's cabinet after the Scottish aristocrat succeeded Harold Macmillan as Tory premier.

Macleod had tough going because he had to agree with Lee that present steel prices are in "disarray."

Last June a restrictive practices court stated there is no price competition in the industry. Restrictive price agreements in the £1,400,000,000 industry were condemned by both Macleod and Lee as the debate wore on.

Nevertheless Macleod declared his party's uncompromising hostility to steel nationalization.

Lee, in his turn, rejected liberal proposals for partial nationalization of the industry or state shareholding in it. He said these would be insufficient to achieve the drastic change required.

NDPer, Grit Win Election

By The Canadian Press

The New Democratic Party won Waterloo South in an upset victory while the Liberal party retained Westmorland with an increased majority in two federal byelections Monday.

Max Saltzman, 43, a Galt alderman and owner of a dry cleaning firm, won the Ontario riding, breaking a long tradition of conservatism in Waterloo South.

Margaret Rideout, 41, widow of Sherwood H. Rideout whose death in May caused the Westmorland vacancy, polled a plurality of more than 6,000 votes. Her husband retained the New Brunswick seat in the 1963 general election with a margin of more than 3,000 votes.

Mr. Saltzman defeated Progressive Conservative James Chaplin, 31, who was attempting to retain the seat vacated by the death in June of his father, Gordon. Rod Stewart, 30, a Galt high school teacher who switched from the NDP to gain the Liberal nomination, ran a distant third.

In Westmorland, another three-way contest, lawyer J. Edward Murphy, the Conservative candidate, finished second, with New Democrat Henry Landry, a businessman, well behind.

The byelection results left the House of Commons standing at Liberals 129, Progressive Conservatives 96, NDP 18, Creditists 13 and Social Credit nine. There are no House vacancies.

Mrs. Rideout, mother of three sons aged 11, 15, and 19, became the sixth woman member of the Commons — and the second widow of a sitting member to win a seat this year. In Saskatoon last June 22, Mrs. H. F. Jones retained a seat for the Conservatives left vacant by the death of her husband.

RETAIN FOUR SEATS

Since the general election April 8, 1963, the Liberals have retained all four of their seats contested in byelections — two in Montreal, one in Nipissing in Northern Ontario and Westmorland. The PCs have retained one — Saskatoon — and lost one — Waterloo South.

Mr. Saltzman picked up 12,508 votes, Mr. Chaplin 9,876 and Mr. Stewart 5,168. There were 36,025 eligible voters.

In the 1963 election, the late Mr. Chaplin polled 11,479 votes, Liberal Donald Shaver polled 8,792 and Mr. Stewart, then running for the NDP, picked up 7,403. Seated Ted Bezar got 372.

In Westmorland, Mrs. Rideout polled 20,310, Mr. Murphy 14,017 and Mr. Landry 2,596. The total of eligible voters was 48,500.

In 1963, Mr. Rideout got 19,989 votes, Conservative Jean-Paul LeBlanc 16,356, New Democrat J. Edward McAllister 4,415 and Seated John Bampton 771.

Westmorland has voted Liberal in eight of the last 12 general elections.

Mr. Saltzman was the first NDP to win Waterloo South.

COMMUNISTS:

Que. Should Have Right To Separate

QUEBEC (CP) — The Communist party says Quebec should have the legal right to separate from Canada.

The party's Quebec committee takes the stand in a brief submitted today to the Quebec legislature committee studying the Canadian constitution.

"French Canada should be able to decide itself which fields of its sovereignty will remain under its absolute control and which parts of its sovereignty it is willing to join with the corresponding fields of English Canada in a federal state," says the party's brief.

It should also have "the right to separate completely." The 15-member special committee is holding public hearings to find out what Quebec wants in any changes to the Canadian constitution. The committee was created in 1963.

A teachers' group, meanwhile, said Canada's federal system should be transformed into a confederal one.

"To be a national minority within a federation is to have the status of an annexed nation," said the Professional Association of Lay Classical College Teachers of the Province of Quebec.

But, it said, in a confederal system, each member state would be "quasi-sovereign" and would be free to choose its political system and its official language.

Chou Extends Kremlin Visit; Summit Goal

By GEORGE SYVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP) — A new call came from the Kremlin today for a world Communist conference on the Moscow - Peking rift, but there was no indication Chinese Premier Chou En-lai's talks with the new Soviet leaders have brought the two camps closer together.

A Moscow dispatch to L'Unita, the Italian Communist newspaper, said Chou and his Peking delegation, which came to Moscow for last week's celebration of the 47th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, apparently were extending their visit for further talks.

An editorial today in Pravda, the Soviet party newspaper, said a world Communist conference "is clearly overdue." China had vigorously opposed such a conference when former premier Khrushchev called it to muster support against the Chinese. But the Kremlin's new leaders, Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin, are expected to put the emphasis at such a meeting on unity and not schism.

Brezhnev raised a toast to Communist unity Monday at a farwell dinner for foreign delegations leaving after the week-end celebrations. There was no word whether Chou responded.

Chou and the Soviet leaders are assumed to be bargaining over Chinese terms for an indefinite suspension of the verbal hostilities between Peking and Moscow. The Chinese have indicated in recent statements that they expect the Kremlin to renounce most of Khrushchev's policies since 1956 — including de-Stalinization and peaceful coexistence with the West.

Brezhnev reaffirmed Soviet adherence to Khrushchev's coexistence policy during a meeting last Friday night. Chou did not join in the applause.

2 PETITIONS DEMAND COUNCILLORS RESIGN

LANGLEY (CP) — The Langley municipal council took steps Monday to disqualify two councillors recently convicted of impaired driving.

Council declared vacant the seats of councillors Eric Flowerdew and John Wellman.

Flowerdew was recently convicted and sentenced to 14 days in jail for impaired driving. Wellman was fined $200 and given a licence suspension on a separate offence.

Flowerdew's offence was his second. It was a first offence for Wellman.

Minister Guilty On Sex Charges

CHATHAM, Ont. (UPI) — Rev. Russel D. Horsburgh, 45, was found guilty today on five of eight counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Judge W. H. Fox of London, Ont., found Horsburgh not guilty on three other counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency by permitting, encouraging and providing for juveniles to have sexual intercourse in his church.

The minister was taken into custody after Judge Fox took two hours to read the 57-page judgment. He will be sentenced later today.

Sixty-two witnesses, including many of Horsburgh's teen-aged parishioners were called to the stand to give some 400,000 words in testimony.

Twelve character witnesses were called during the trial of the Park Street United Church minister.

Some of the teen-age witnesses testified to making love in the church with the minister's knowledge during teen-age dances.

In defence, the minister denied he had ever encouraged or permitted teen-agers to have sexual intercourse on the church premises.

He also denied statements by witnesses that he had called his church "the biggest whorehouse in Chatham" and that he

Partners Get No Favors Britain Says

GENEVA (AP) — Britain bluntly told its six partners in the European Free Trade Association (EFTA) Monday they can expect no special favors to blunt the impact of its new import restriction.

Douglas Jay, president of the Board of Trade, told an EFTA meeting that Britain has rejected a suggestion that its EFTA partners should not have to bear the full weight of the 15 per cent import surcharge.

The import tax was imposed by the new Labor government in an attempt to shore up Britain's currency, the pound sterling.

Britain would continue to "consider the possibilities of easing the difficulties for our EFTA partners," but no practical measures had been suggested thus far, Jay said.

Jay said both the Commonwealth countries and other members of GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) would expect similar treatment if any exemption were granted to the EFTA countries. Canada is a GATT member.

Representatives of business firms in the EFTA countries — Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Portugal, Austria and Switzerland — earlier had bitterly denounced the British restriction as a "flagrant violation" of the EFTA treaty.

Death Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Duncan Beaudry, 44, of Vancouver, was charged with capital murder Monday in the death of Larry Taylor, 40, also of Vancouver.

Taylor's body, clad in women's clothing, was found at the rear of a skid road hotel last week. He had been strangled.

Police said Beaudry was one of almost a dozen persons questioned after Taylor's body was discovered. They said Monday they were still holding a 55-year-old woman in connection with the death.

'WILLINGNESS TO PURGE HIMSELF' Governor to Free Dog Lover

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Jim Laing, who ended up in jail because he refused to surrender his dog for execution, is going free.

Governor Albertis S. Harrison said Monday he will issue a reprieve effective Thursday, freeing Laing from three weeks of the four-week jail term he is serving for contempt of court.

Laing, 63, was convicted for failing to surrender his dog Ricky after the animal was adjudged a sheep-killer in 1961. He fought the contempt citation to the U.S. Supreme Court but lost.

Harrison said he was told by Laing's lawyer, Harvey Lutins, that the dog had been put to death.

Lutins said he understands that a dog named Ricky was destroyed, but he declined to say the dog was Laing's Ricky. Harrison said he will reprieve Laing because he had shown a willingness to purge himself of contempt by surrendering to authorities.

'We Will Remember Them'

IN A BRIEF PERIOD OF silence tomorrow, and in the simple dignity of a traditional ritual, veterans of two world wars, those close to them and the relatives of men who did not come back will join members of the public in a tribute to the fallen.

So this community, with others in almost all parts of the world, will recognize again the sacrifice of men who gave their lives for the ideals they cherished.

In the solemnity of the occasion, memory will turn to those gallant souls who died fighting for a cause they knew was just. For members of the quiet crowds it will be a time of deep personal feeling, a renewal for some of sorrow and for others of that patient acceptance which follows grief.

Yet, 25 years after the outbreak of the Second World War, 50 after the beginning of the First, the ceremony cannot be wholly a recollection of the past. It must be, also, a time for looking to the future in hope, if not in certainty, that some virtue has been purchased for the price paid so dearly.

In scattered parts of a troubled world, conflict continues. Men die at arms. But, as never before, the living work to avoid war, work desperately at points of crisis and with studied reason in halls dedicated to the cause of peace.

As these efforts succeed in bringing closer understanding between nations, as humanity moves, however falteringly, toward the goal, so do we honor the memories of the men who died in war.

They gave life itself to serve this high purpose. They are remembered.

"Now then, men! ... Drums! ... Bugles! ... Let's hear 'em ...!"

Restraints Against Excessive Power

IN the last few days we have all had the chance to study the longer shadows cast by the election. Their final meaning is still hidden from view but certain definite and important conclusions have already been established. It has become fashionable to say that the result was less a mandate for President Johnson than a rejection of Senator Goldwater. That is only partly true. It explains the President's triumphant majority, at least the overpowering figures, but it does not account for the nation's confidence in the President as the best alternative to Mr. Goldwater.

Freedman

It is no dishonor to the memory of President Kennedy to say that he would have entered this contest without many of the advantages that belonged to President Johnson. For many Americans this President seemed to embody the very virtues of continuity and experience, of moderation and responsibility that Senator Goldwater was challenging. To this extent the election is clearly an endorsement of the President as well as a repudiation of his challenger. Mr. Johnson is fully justified in drawing this meaning from the returns.

Strategy Vindicated

From the beginning of the campaign the President decided that his best strategy was to destroy Senator Goldwater rather than to sharpen and illuminate various public issues. As a political strategist, his judgment has been completely vindicated. Yet the obstinate convention still persists that he would have done just as well at the polls if he had examined the issues with more penetration and candor.

All that now belongs to the past. The President has emerged from the election with more political power than has fallen to any leader in this century. He has not encumbered himself with pledges and obligations that will fetter his future. He can be the centre of unity for the whole country. Alike by temperament and by philosophy he is uniquely qualified for that high task. It is one measure of his credentials for leadership that he would almost certainly have been elected by the same huge majority if our allies could have voted. Invulnerable at home, he was indispensable abroad; and those two facts form his best mandate.

How he will use that mandate is now the test question. The American political system has an instinctive fear of big majorities. It always builds restraints against excessive power. President Johnson is very familiar with this ancient rule. He will discourage eccentric independence among the Democrats in Congress, and by treating them with respect, do everything in the President's power to keep them responsive to the national interest.

Opportunity for Dignity

Divided and demoralized, the Republicans can easily sink into a mutinous and embittered faction. President Johnson, aware of this danger, can be trusted to enlist Senator Dirksen and Representative Halleck, two old friends, in the common enterprises of government on a basis that will respect the independence and dignity of the Republican Party. The fault will not rest with the White House if the Republicans now take up the themes of discontent and recrimination.

In all probability, President Johnson will have more trouble with public opinion than with Congress. It will be a new experience for him to find a large part of the press critical of his words and needs.

This mortification will carry a sharper edge because some of the criticism will come from papers that supported him in the campaign. Yet they, and the commentators, really have no choice. They must do some of the work of an opposition party for which the Republicans are now so tragically unprepared. Incidentally, the future role of the press will provide the best answer to Senator Goldwater's repeated complaints that the press was unfair to him and the Republican cause.

Defiant Cry?

Senator Goldwater accepted his shattering defeat with a meek dignity that half redeemed his blunders and gaucheries in the campaign. His announced determination to continue his role as a national leader may be no more than a defiant cry against the counsels of despair. He has had his hour, and it gives him small claim to the gratitude of his party or the respect of the country. His plans raise large questions about the Republican Party's future.

Meanwhile President Johnson begins to form the new administration with his sense of leadership confirmed and deepened by this most impressive display of public confidence. But he will not be allowed to savor his triumph for very long. Fresh anxieties and new challenges will inexorably converge on him. His campaign, in a most important sense, was really an act of faith in the American character. He interpreted the wishes of America correctly; he saw its hopes clearly. Now he must speak for America with convincing dignity and act for it with wise courage. Let us hope, in Emerson's words, that he will always be able to see a little better on a cloudy day, and have a sedate strength in the hour of danger. The future may be dark but his promise is bright, and a nation's good wishes light the path before him.

Getting Men for the Jobs

A STUDY CARRIED OUT BY the Canada Economic Council and due to be published at the year-end will, according to The Financial Post, reveal a startling shortage of labor in this country.

Despite the fact that there are still some 200,000 persons unemployed right now, in almost every business and industry in Canada there are job openings which cannot be filled. Most of the job-seekers, the Canada Economic Council survey of 200 companies discovered, haven't the education or training required to handle the jobs that are going begging.

The situation is serious enough that some economists believe the current run of business expansion could be stalled through lack of enough skilled personnel right from the tradesman to the professional levels.

The most disturbing aspect of the skilled labor shortage problem is that it appears to have caught the nation unawares. The Economic Council's experts, when they began their study of the situation, discovered that relatively little work has been done in the field. Studies of manpower needs have not been made in the past in anything like the depth needed—largely because there has been a shortage of the economists and statisticians required to undertake the work.

Over the long term much of the skilled labor shortage is likely to be overcome by the rapid acceleration across Canada of technical and vocational training programs as well as by the retraining of workers whose present skills have been rendered obsolete by technological advances. In the short-run, however, the shortage could hurt the country badly in terms of lost production and it becomes apparent that better co-ordination of industrial needs with educational programs could have prevented some of the loss.

The situation, indeed, raises doubts as to the ability of an industrial nation to progress without adequate economic research and planning organized co-operatively by government, industry and education.

The "planned economy" with its overtones of bureaucratic direction of every aspect of economic life is anathema to most Canadian businessmen and many Canadian citizens.

Other industrial nations — notably France and Germany — have managed to work a high degree of planning into their economies, however, without noticeably diminishing economic freedom. The United States is very obviously moving quickly to attain a much greater degree of over-all planning based on extensive research and statistical study of economic problems. Canada will have to move along the same road if it does not want to be left behind.

Ordeal By Exhaustion

THE BUSINESS OF CHOOSING a national flag for Canada has become an embarrassment and a bore. What should have been a straightforward decision on its own merits has degenerated into a political squabble.

In the opinion of many people, the flag issue has become a means toward an end, not the end itself. Mr. Diefenbaker appears determined to extract every drop of political juice from the controversy, and inordinate delay is one of his weapons. Thus, what was feared from the beginning may occur—that a flag design will be chosen and made official, not because no better one could be created but because both lawmakers and the public have been pushed to the point of disillusionment and frustration.

It is difficult to think of any other nation whose national emblem has been born under such adverse conditions. We could not hope to have a flag by decree that would please everybody; will we end up with one that pleases almost nobody?

History may question Mr. Pearson's wisdom in raising the question at the particular time he did, but his motives will be recognized as sincere and well-intentioned. The record will deal more sternly with Mr. Diefenbaker, who has obstructed progress and prolonged the controversy even beyond the understanding of many of his own party. This was not statesmanship but personal ambition, not patriotism but politics, not victory for a principle but defeat for a tactic.

From such a confused origin the nation will receive its flag, eventually, less with rejoicing than with relief—a far cry from the proud unanimity with which it should be flown.

A New Partnership

THE FIRST MERGING OF forest technologies of two of the greatest forest areas, British Columbia and Sweden, was announced Friday and it promises considerable benefits to this province.

The merger will take place in the construction and operation of a new $80 million pulp mill at Prince Rupert by Columbia Cellulose Ltd. of Vancouver, and Svenska Cellulosa Aktiebolaget, Sweden's largest manufacturer and distributor of forest products. It will bring about the formation of a formidable manufacturing and marketing organization which will help to broaden the world market for this province's most important primary resource.

Equal in importance to new markets may be the experience in wood utilization which the Swedish firm can bring to the industry here. Sweden is acknowledged to be a leader in full utilization of forest resources, a practice which is still relatively new in this country, and the technology which Svenska can apply to this new operation could be invaluable in promoting better and more profitable use of British Columbia's forests than now prevails.

Another British Triumph

IN BRITAIN, WHERE SIR ALEX. Fleming's "triumph of accident and shrewd observation" in 1928 led to the discovery of penicillin, another "wonder drug" has made its appearance.

This is not by accident. Rather it is the product of expensive and painstaking research over a period of eight years by a team of hundreds.

What this will mean to medical science will become more apparent as the new product, ceporin, is brought into use. Accounts of tests to which it has been submitted indicate spectacular results.

If these hopes are justified, then humanity will owe another debt to the scientists of Britain who need bow their heads to no one in the field of medical accomplishment.

WHO WAS BEHIND IT?

The Riddles of the Khrushchev Ouster Remain

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

IS THERE to be a reconciliation between Moscow and Peking? The composition of the Chinese delegation to Moscow is in itself enough to show that there is so far no question of an inter-party rapprochement. Mr. Chou En-lai, the Chinese prime minister, has been met by Mr. Kossygin, the Soviet prime minister. Very conspicuously absent from his delegation are the high Chinese party leaders who alone are qualified to discuss party relationships with their Russian opposite numbers.

Even without this, Pravda last week recapitulated as main articles of faith all those resolutions of the three last Soviet party congresses which the Chinese have denounced as revisionist and heretical. The Chinese on their side have continued to lay stress on their nuclear capability, on the ripeness of Africa for revolution, on the iniquity of all American presidents.

The most that can be expected from Chou En-lai's visit is that a halt will be called to the formalization of the spirit and a check applied to the highly dangerous inter-state quarrel which Khrushchev appeared to be deliberately encouraging.

Keepers of the Flame

(Canada's War Memorial)

Bronze, marble, artist, Resuscitate the dead. From vanquished oblivion Past and present merge. Standing lifelike, the dead Look—without seeing, Walk—without progressing, Listen and understand not. They live in us, Their task accomplished, Their torch.

Bronze, marble, artist, And we, If we so wish, Can immortalize. Useless becomes our torch If the sacrificial flame Shines not on it, as of yore. Useless—bronze, Shapeless—marble, Misunderstood, the artist. Unless we prolong the effort, Unless we keep the flame high And its vacillating light.

From one sea to the other, Let us close our ranks; As they had done, Let us go on together, Let us go on.

FREDERICK BRONNER

There are some who believe that among Mr. Khrushchev's celebrated "happened" plans for organizing revolts in Sinkiang and elsewhere with the prime object of destroying China's installations—and that certain colleagues thought, as well they might, that this was going altogether too far in the direction of inter-dependence with the United States.

What are all the other Communists now doing in Moscow? The idea of a Communist Party "little summit" is an oversimplification. It is not even clear whether there will be joint meetings of all the party leaders (with or without the Chinese, lacking theirs, as observers), or whether the 47th anniversary of the Revolution is more than a pretext for the various Communist Parties to discuss recent events with the Russians—or for the Russians to tell the fraternal comrades what they must believe.

It is clear that nobody at all in the Communist world is satisfied with the explanations of Mr. Khrushchev's overthrow. The Russians have so far offered. It is equally clear that the Russians have no intention of publishing the real reasons for the coup.

Now, without knowing who engineered his overthrow, can we ourselves begin to guess at the real reason.

One thing seems now to be generally agreed among all sophisticated Communists: it is that the new First Secretary, Brezhnev, and the new Prime Minister, Kossygin, are essentially front men. The revolt against Khrushchev, presided over by Mr. Mikoyan, was matured and executed in the shadows.

It is also largely agreed that before the revolt could succeed Mr. Khrushchev had to be isolated from his supporters and paralyzed. Since it is now evident that the army played no part in this revolt, the inevitable assumption is that the necessary strong-arm work was carried out quietly and secretly by the political police, the KGB, commanded by the ex-leader of the League of Communist Youth, Mr. Semichastny. It was he, it may be remembered, who led the pack against Pasternak and gave a taste of his quality when he proclaimed: "Not even a pig would ever do what he has done. Pasternak has fouled the spot where he ate and cast filth on those by whose labor he lives and breathes."

Mr. Semichastny, who is 40, should be borne in mind by those who feel that all the younger functionaries in Russia must

Will someone kindly enlighten me as to any motive, historical or otherwise, there can be in the controversial red maple leaf flag on a white background. To me it represents nothing more than a half dead leaf on a field of snow.

In other words it is unimaginative and unworthy of this great member of the Commonwealth.

Public Support

Re: the question asked in your column "Round-a-bout" — "Why doesn't the censor do something about it?" (a brutal or over-sexy film) may I respectfully ask: What can the public do about it? Censorship ratings are a guide. They need public support to be really effective.

As chairman of the Victoria Parent-Teacher Council Movie Guide Committee for the past three years, my answer would be:

(1) Realize that 'brutal' and 'over-sexy' movies do have an adverse effect on standards of behavior. Why in the "Times" of Wednesday, October 28, do we read "10,000 B.C. Homes Sought for Babies" and the shocking suggestion contained in a CBC-TV program that the contraceptive pill should be given regularly to every school girl over 12, referred to by Arthur Mayse in a splendid column? What influences are bringing about these deplorable conditions? (2) Refrain from supporting such movies by refusing to attend, walking out, or turning the knob when they appear on TV.

(3) Inform theatre management and write letters to the editor, movie and TV producers of reactions to such films. There is power in public opinion.

(4) As parents we can take a greater interest in the movies our children see. The Children's Movie Guide is published in the "Times" every Thursday to help parents do this.

Above all, we must maintain high standards of personal conduct and not permit them to be challenged or undermined. Such standards are needed more than ever today. The alternative is bleak indeed.

(MRS.) LILLIAN MONEY.

Birthright

Has it ever occurred to our people and to those who represent us that, regardless of politics, it is their moral duty to give us our birthright identity, an identity that is free from any other, and recognized both by visitors and the outside world. No disloyalty is intended in any way to Britain. Surely our all-out effort in two world wars has proved that.

I am quite sure that Britain is being embarrassed enough already, without our having an election as to our loyalty to her. Britain is not the Britain of 1914 or even 1939. Neither is Canada. But that does not mean disloyalty either way.

One can not stop time and changes. So let us stop this wrangling over the birthright of millions of Canadians and those of good Canadian citizenship.

Nov. 10, 1924 — Peking: Chinese National Leaders continued to arrive here today for the conference which is expected to determine the immediate future Government of China.

The foreign Communists do not know, any more than we know, to what extent the coup against Mr. Khrushchev was inspired by jealousy of his power or opposition to his policies. They would very much like to know. Since palace revolutions rarely finish cleanly, they would also like to know who is still fighting whom.

Lest we forget, the slogan goes: Forget the battles, bloodshed, strife; Forget that we must love our foes; Forget a useless waste of life. Lest we forget; but have we not—Those dear ones lying in foreign soil, The ones who went out there and fought, The ones who gave their lives to God?

Lest we forget, but have we not—The widow's orphans left unloved? Lest we forget, but have we not—As we saw the hand of war unglowed?

E. G. C. RICHARDS.

(Ft. Sgt. E. G. C. Richards, RCAF, wrote this poem before being lost in combat March 14, 1945.)

Leaving Sunlit Memories

THE lucky people in this world work beside someone blessed with the ability to add cheerfulness and happiness to the day. Don Ingham had that gift.

Compassion was not a calculated virtue in him. It was merely a natural part of his character. The misfortune or the good fortune of those around him he shared. To the one he gave a ready sympathy, to the other a sense of buoyant participation. When the breaks went your way, Don felt good. His reaction, and the way he communicated it to you, made you feel better.

Quick to praise, slow to condemn, his judgment of others was tempered by an intuitive knowledge of the strengths and weaknesses of human beings. They were people reacting to influences which were compelling to them—and he felt it unfair to measure a man by his mistakes until the reason for those mistakes was clear.

When he came to us 14 years ago, we at the Times gained more than a competent newsman. He brought with him a measureless capacity for cheerfulness as well as knowledge in depth of some subjects that added authenticity to the newspaper.

From earlier years in the woods he could talk with understanding of the men who make British Columbia rich from its forest resources. He could explain the feelings of the man ridding a spruce tree, bucking felled timber, bulldozing a logging road on driving a loaded truck with risk at his shoulder.

An informed amateur's interest in astronomy took Don Ingham on a busman's holiday to the Prairies about a year ago—and revealed his understanding of astral phenomena few of us had recognized.

Until the last year or two he worked it so that he was on the shore of Lake Washington for Seattle's top-flight Sea Fair races and he wrote and spoke with authority on the craft, engines and drivers who make that event outstanding in its field.

These were specialties he handled beyond the ordinary run of the news to which he devoted workmanlike attention day in and day out.

But it was less for his professional work than for his friendly enjoyment of life that we knew him best.

If something gave him pleasure, that pleasure was magnified when he could spread it to his friends. His hospitality was open-handed.

We of the Times will remember him clowning gaily with a banjo or guitar at an office party, raising a shouted laughter that never contained malice—and finding time to see that no one was left out of the fun.

We will think of him in quieter moments, talking of youngsters, their problems, plans for their education, and the hope and confidence that they would see the cheerful side of existence.

His troubles he kept largely to himself, until their severity forced him into hospital. Even there he managed a grin for visitors.

He has gone too soon, leaving a deep sense of personal loss but also the realization that life has been sunnier because he passed this way.

BALCER favors formula.

'No Politics To Patriate BNA Act'

MONTREAL (CP)—Leon Balcer, Quebec leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said Monday the proposed formula for amending the Canadian constitution should be above party politics.

He told a student audience at Sir George Williams University that he is in favor of the proposed formula.

"It is so vital to national unity it should be above party politics," he said.

He said, speaking in English, that he did not know whether he was "passing a judgement" on Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's attitude.

There were several questions concerning the leadership of the federal Progressive Conservative party. Michael Millar, vice-president of the Student Liberal Federation of Quebec, referred to a "split" in the Progressive Conservative party and asked whether Mr. Diefenbaker's position is being challenged.

Mr. Balcer replied that in opposition it is possible to express differing opinions.

Mr. Diefenbaker remained his leader.

At a press conference following the meeting, he said there is "no plot" to replace Mr. Diefenbaker.

Pearkes Reads Scripture At St. John's

A special remembrance day service in St. John's Anglican Church Sunday afternoon was well attended by members of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes read the scripture and Archdeacon J. W. Forth preached the service.

On Wednesday a special service will be held as usual at 11 a.m. in the church when a two-minute silence will be observed.

Nuclear Arms Ban Plan Stirs Council Challenge

VATICAN CITY (UPI)

Philip M. Hannan, auxiliary bishop of Washington, D.C., today challenged the ecumenical council's proposition to outlaw all nuclear weapons.

He called for a "radical revision" of proposed council declarations on war and peace because of what he termed "falsities and erroneous assertions" they contained about nuclear weapons.

Monday, Dutch Cardinal Bernard Alfrink criticized the proposition as not going far enough. He said it could be interpreted as a condemnation only of "dirty" nuclear weapons with unlimited fallout, not of all nuclear arms.

The text of the council draft says in part: "Every honest effort must be made so that not only nuclear warfare may be solemnly proscribed by all nations and alliances as an enormous crime, but also so that nuclear arms or others of like destructive force may be utterly destroyed and banned."

Although speaking for himself, Hannan expressed views widely held by the 240 U.S. bishops, reflecting reservations on the document on the part of some Washington circles and U.S. disarmament experts in Geneva.

The council proposal puts into question U.S. policy of a nuclear deterrent. Bishop Hannan said its stress was wrong, that the council must remember the need for defence of liberty, and that "we should state what is allowed in war."

"It is simply rhetorical to affirm that all nuclear arms are uncontrollable and that their destructive power is of such proportions as to be unimaginable," he said.

He said it was false to state that there are no nuclear arms that cannot be controlled and also erroneous to say the effects of nuclear strikes with certain weapons are greater than can be foreseen.

The American also said it was "a cruel injustice" to charge in the document that all nations and heads of nations have been negligent in promoting peace.

"This statement, completely superficial, is false and gravely offends the dignity and dedication with which various nations and many responsible political persons have dedicated themselves, not without sacrifice, to the defence of peace," he said.

Clinically tested. Your money back if TEGRIN does not give relief. Psoriasis can leave your skin so crusty and scaly you feel embarrassed, self-conscious, ill at ease. But now, there is new help for psoriasis sufferers—a new clinically tested healing preparation called TEGRIN.

Unique triple-action cream

TEGRIN is an efficient cream you can purchase at all drug counters. So easy and pleasant to use—even on the scalp—with no lingering medical smell or stain. And it's effective because it works three ways at once:

1. Scale removal and itch control—the use of TEGRIN helps to relieve itching promptly; scales and crust "pile-ups" are loosened and come away.
2. Healing of the skin—the soothing action of TEGRIN speeds improvement by encouraging the natural ability of the skin tissue to recover and heal itself.
3. Prevention of recurrent scales—timely re-application of TEGRIN provides a special preventive action that opposes and helps block off the formation of new scales.

Dramatic clearing reported

Before its introduction, the TEGRIN formula was subjected to exhaustive investigation. Extensive clinical tests were conducted. The results of these studies showed the TEGRIN formula to be effective in relieving psoriasis. Clinical reports dealing with the results of treatment show that the TEGRIN formula has an impressive achievement record.

The manufacturers of TEGRIN sincerely believe this is one of the most effective medications ever developed to give relief and control of psoriatic skin disturbances. If after a fair trial, the user is not satisfied with TEGRIN, the manufacturer will refund the cost of the purchase.

So why suffer from the miseries of psoriasis? For effective relief, get new TEGRIN today.

Here are the 13 spots where psoriasis most often starts:

but mainly sunny skies today will offset these unpleasant readings. Farther south a series of small storm centres moving rapidly eastward across the northwestern states have maintained extensive cloud and frequent snow flurries or mixed rain and snow over the southern interior. By early Wednesday morning cloud and rain will have reached Vancouver Island in advance of an active system now crossing the southern Gulf of Alaska. During the day the effect of this system will spread eastward across the southern half of the province.

Kenya One-Party State

NAIROBI (AP) — Kenya became a one-party state today with the voluntary dissolution of the opposition Kenya African Democratic Union.

Party Leader Ronald Ngala announced he was taking KADU into the government "to strengthen the National Front and to speak with one voice on all issues that confront our nation." Ngala told a press conference that any differences of opinion on matters of foreign policy, economic development or defence would be ironed out among themselves.

As a result of the KADU decision, a bill to make Kenya a republic on the first anniversary of independence Dec. 12 will go unopposed when it comes to a vote in the Senate, probably this afternoon. It already has been approved by the lower house.

The bill will replace Queen Elizabeth as head of state by an executive president. Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta, head of the ruling Kenya African National Union, will be the first president.

PORT OF VANCOUVER MARKS 100TH BIRTHDAY

VANCOUVER (CP)—The port of Vancouver celebrated its 100th birthday Monday.

The event was marked by the dedication of a park in North Vancouver and presentations to captains of the deepsea vessels in port.

The new Moodyville Park in North Vancouver is on the site of the first sawmill in Burrard Inlet. It was from the sawmill that the first shipment—a cargo of lumber—left Vancouver for Adelaide, Australia, 100 years ago.

LAND FOR BLACKTOP

Beware of WAC NWT Meet Told

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP)—An appointed member of the Northwest Territorial Council said Monday that Premier Bennett of British Columbia was trying to grab off a large piece of Canada's northland "in low the excellent example of the federal government and give the territories a minimum hourly wage of $1.25 an hour." He also called for a revision of labor laws in the North which he said were outdated.

Mr. Hodgson said Mr. Bennett should think of putting more roads, hospitals and schools in his province.

"Some areas have lots and others have none," he said. "It depends where you live and how you vote."

He said it wasn't inconceivable that Mr. Bennett would sell much of the North's water resources to the United States to finance the roadwork.

If Mr. Bennett really had the good of the North at heart, he should donate $1,000,000 for roadwork here with no strings attached.

"Canada has spent millions in the north as well and will have to spend millions more," Mr. Hodgson said.

"But is it not better at the end to be masters of your own house than to be dependent on the cure-alls of a medicine man from the West Coast?"

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

There have been mean men who have achieved reverence among their obnoxious kind. They are unique, but a man's talents have nothing to do with his character. Good manners come before talent.

Then there are the graceful men whose achievements stand as shrines and we guard them against vandals of all sorts. In some way they are monuments to the best that's in ourselves. We believe that being associated with them honors us all.

People in our business felt that way about Donald Grey Ingham. He was one of the fine people in the office and out of it.

The end came swiftly, a report said. Not swiftly enough. Not without weeks of unceasing, remorseless pain. Not so suddenly as to take anyone by surprise. Not anyone at all.

Through it all, stretching back into early summer, Don Ingham never imposed his cross on others. A student nurse, witness to his private hell, spoke of his class:

"We know what he's going through," she once said, "but not from him. He never asks for anything and he never forgets to thank you for everything."

Sport was not his beat. People were. He liked boating and car racing and thoroughbreds. He didn't play any game except the game of life where he stood ten feet tall.

"Indifferent" is not a descriptive cut to fit Ingham. Once when a cub reporter showed up at work after failing to suppress a lingering thirst he was greeted with knowing smiles. Nobody moved to talk to him. Nobody but Ingham.

"You have only one life to lead," Ingham said softly. "If you squander it, only you are to blame. Is it worth it this way?" No platitudes. Just a thought from a thoughtful man.

Even in his moments of deepest pain, Don Ingham never indulged in self-pity.

On one of his better days when the pain was at least intermittent, he smiled wanly and said: "There's a lot of talk these days about kids. Don't believe it all. This has taught me."

"You know my son (Don)? He's been a tower of strength to me and Hyslop. She doesn't drive so he takes her everywhere. I don't think a day has passed when he hasn't been here. Even though it meant giving up something he wanted to do. No youngster is perfect, mine included. But they rise up when the time comes."

Les Millin, a reporter in our shop, remembers Ingham. "He went out of his way to make you feel you belonged. He didn't have to. It was just his way."

If one measure of a man is not how many friends he has but how few enemies, Ingham was a peaceful atoll on a stormy sea.

Ingham enjoyed a good story, especially if it was on him. People who can laugh at themselves rarely have need for a psychiatrist's couch.

His omnipresent cheerfulness will be missed. When a guy felt low a chat with Ingham was the best prescription. A piece of churchyard fits us all, soon or late. But it doesn't hurt any less when an Ingham leaves.

The game is over, but the memories linger.

"You would think," Les Millin was saying, "that with all his problems he wouldn't be concerned with others. But only last Friday when I saw him he wanted to know how things were at the office, if I had met the new publisher."

"One of the last things he asked about was my wife and daughter."

Others before self. A creed to live by.

Cavaliers Clouted In Survival Battle

Medics Say Ford Will Throw Again

HOUSTON (AP)—Doctors cut a nerve in Whitey Ford's left arm during a 12-hour operation Monday and a hospital spokesman said the New York Yankee pitcher should be throwing the ball again next spring.

Ford will be in the hospital about a week.

A spokesman said a sympathetic nerve which supplies the muscular artery was cut allowing the blood to flow more freely to the arm.

Cadets Bid For Revenge

Royal Roads' cadets are looking for revenge.

Twenty-five strong, they will journey to Colorado Springs, Colo., to try to regain the sports honors they lost last year to the cadets of the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Teams will compete Saturday in soccer and cross-country. Annual competition between the groups started in 1956.

Both contestants for the Nov. 26 heavyweight title rematch were pronounced in perfect health with special attention given to Liston's left shoulder which forced Liston to yield his crown last winter in Miami.

Although the session was billed as a preliminary weigh-in, neither fighter was actually weighed although they stepped on the scales for photographers.

In a farcical display, the champion strode up and down trolley tracks, halted trucks and kept calling, "Have you seen the bear?"

BEFORE THE CRASH

For few moments at start of second game of Western Football Conference semifinal Monday night at Calgary, hopes of Saskatchewan Roughriders were riding high. They zoomed on this play as Hugh Campbell (31) evaded Calgary's Jerry Keeling to make spectacular catch of Ron Lancaster pass. Hopes crashed quickly and Stampede rolled to 51-6 triumph and berth in best-of-three final against B.C. Lions. (CP photo.)

Cheap Penalty Levies Annoy Alfie's Blades

Rules aimed at reducing rough play in the Western Hockey League may be having the opposite effect, says Alfie Pike, coach of Los Angeles Blades.

Alfie and his Blades are in town for tonight's clash with Victoria Maple Leafs at Memorial Arena and Pike today was predicting a bouncing time for the Leafs.

Nobody really expects to get through a game with Los Angeles without a collection of bruises because the Blades have one of the most boisterous collections of defencemen in the league, headed by the muscular and volatile Howie Young.

But there's another reason why Pike says "we'll probably have a very rough game tonight."

YOUNG VS. SHVETZ

"The way they are calling all these new rules and regulations is irritating the players," commented Pike. "You have Mr. Shvets and we have Mr. Young. Both are getting tired of getting cheap penalties. I'll be surprised if we don't see some hard hitting tonight."

"In fact, all my players are getting cheesed off with the way the calls have been going and figure they might as well get some real penalties."

Pike will also be shooting for his first victory on Victoria ice in three tries this season. In two earlier Memorial Arena efforts, the Blades were beaten 3-1 and 4-3.

NORRIS BEST

And if there is any one player who is most likely to thwart the Leafs tonight, Pike figures goalie Jack Norris is the man to do the job.

"Norris is probably the best goalie in the league," he said. "In 13 games this season, he has been picked as the game star 11 times."

Saanichton Clubs Have Rough Start

Saanichton teams proved to be generous hosts at opening games of the Peninsula Basketball League.

They lost all their games to visiting clubs.

Brentwood defeated Saanichton bantam boys 57-15. Cordova Ray midget girls trimmed their hosts 38-5 and the Saanichton pre-midget girls dropped a hard-fought 18-14 decision to Cordova Ray.

Anti-Trust Suit To Face Braves?

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Representative Henry Reuss (Dem.-Wis.) suggested to Milwaukee County officials Monday that they consider bringing "an immediate lawsuit in an appropriate court" against the National League under the anti-trust statutes.

Reuss said that the league's action last week approving transfer of the Milwaukee franchise to Atlanta in 1966 is a clear attempt at restraint of trade.

Reuss said that "baseball's 42-year-old exemption from the anti-trust laws is at an end," and there is no reason for the county to await either possible action by the department of justice or Congress before initiating action.

Circuit Judge Ronald Drechsler, who issued the initial temporary restraining order that stopped the Braves from moving to Atlanta last month, set Wednesday for a further hearing.

The Braves had asked a federal court to take jurisdiction, but U.S. District Judge Robert E. Tolan returned the matter to state court last Friday.

Milwaukee County board chairman Eugene Groeschmidt said Monday night he agreed with Reuss about starting the anti-trust action. He said the suit would confer about such a suit with corporation counsel Robert Russell.

At a Phoenix, Ariz., meeting Saturday, National League club owners told the Braves to live up to their contract with the county to play all 1965 home games in County Stadium, then shift to Atlanta for the 1966 season.

Dean Chance Voted Best Mound Man

BOSTON (AP)—Righthander Dean Chance, the reformed Los Angeles Angel, who fashioned baseball's lowest earned-run average among starters, was named the Cy Young award winner Monday as the best pitcher of 1964.

Receiving 17 of the 20 votes cast by a special committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America, Chance became the third successive Los Angeles hurler to be selected for the honor.

He succeeds Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers, who received one vote despite the fact he was injured part of the season. The Dodgers' Don Drysdale was the 1962 winner.

Larry Jackson of Chicago Cubs, winningest pitcher in the majors with 24 victories, was named on the other two ballots.

Chance used a fastball and slider to compile a 20-9 record and a 1.65 ERA. Chance also had the most shutouts in the majors—11. A record-tying five of them were 1-0 decisions. The last pitcher to achieve this mark was Carl Hubbell in 1933.

Soriano said the league will hold its main meeting in Houston, Tex., Nov. 30.

There'll be 12 clubs again next year, of course," he said. They stretch from Indianapolis to a field goal attempt at the Stampede's ahead to stay on the semi-final.

Roughies Mauled In Big Stampede

Calgary Crushes Jinx With Awesome Display

CALGARY (CP)—The under-manned Stampede ended a Saskatchewan Roughriders' jinx Monday night en route to a crushing 51-6 victory before 18,455 fans that gave Calgary a berth in the Western Football Conference final.

The victory and the Stampede's 76-40 edge in the two-game total-point semi-final were the most one-sided since the WFC expanded to five teams in 1954.

Never before had a club scored 76 points in a semi-final and only Edmonton Eskimos' 51-7 final-round victory over Saskatchewan in 1956 approached the Stampede's margin Monday over the Riders.

Calgary will open the best-of-three final against British Columbia Lions at home Saturday at 2 p.m. MST. The second game is scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 18, at 8 p.m. in Vancouver. If a third game is needed it will be played Sunday, Nov. 22, at 2 p.m., also in Vancouver.

There was no stopping the Stampede Monday night even though Calgary played two men under the maximum roster limit of 30 because of injuries.

Riders held a nine-point margin entering the game, but Calgary pulled abreast by the end of the first half and went ahead to stay early in the third.

Calgary held quarter margins of 10-6, 15-6 and 31-6 before it turned the game into a rout with a 20-point outburst in the final 15 minutes.

Flanker Bobby Taylor gathered in two touchdown passes, halfback Jim Dillard caught one. Fullback Lovell Coleman and quarterback Eagle Day, who each combined with Taylor on touchdown plays, also scored themselves on two-yard runs.

Defensive end Jim Furlong got Calgary's sixth touchdown late in the game after the Riders recovered a fumble.

Halfback Larry Robinson, the league's top scorer during the regular season, completed Calgary's scoring with two field goals, five converts and four singles.

Statistically, the Stampede had 29 first downs on 314 yards rushing and 237 passing. Day, Coleman and Keeling combined to click on 18 of 29 attempts.

Saskatchewan rushed 65 yards and with 87 yards passing, had 12 first downs.

Conversely, the Stampede moved offensively 15 times and scored on 12 of the series, including five touchdowns. The sixth touchdown was scored by the defence on Furlong's fumble recovery.

"We were never more ready mentally," said coach Bobby Dobbs, who tasted the bitter pill of defeat in both 1962 and 1963 when Calgary appeared almost certain of victory.

"I tell you we just weren't going to be beaten. Our boys were ready, real ready."

ROARED FROM BEHIND

In 1962 a last-second misplay by Wylie allowed Winnipeg to recover a loose ball for a touchdown and a year ago the Riders roared from behind a 26-point deficit to nudge Calgary out of the semi-finals.

Coach Bob Shaw of the Riders acknowledged the Stampede's hard-hitting after the game: "Two or three... guys were knocked goofy." As well the Riders suffered a long series of injuries.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster, who picked apart Calgary a year ago and again Saturday in the series opener when he completed 28 of 35 pass attempts, couldn't get untracked in the second game. He had five passes intercepted and was able to complete only eight of 24 for 87 yards.

"We just couldn't move the ball on offence and naturally that put too much pressure on our defence," he aid after the game.

"They were really hitting that Coleman (fullback Lovell Coleman). I haven't seen him hurt that hard in years."

COLEMAN, DAY STAR

It was Coleman's running, 159 yards on 23 carries, and Day's passing, 214 yards on 16 completions in 26 attempts, that sparked Calgary.

After Saskatchewan had moved ahead 6-0 and taken a 10-5 margin on the round, the Stampede marched 46 yards in four plays to set up Robinson's first field goal from 47 yards out.

The Stampede came right back on a 68-yard drive which was completed by Coleman's eight-yard touchdown pass to Taylor. The next time Calgary moved 55 yards in seven plays and Robinson kicked a 16-yard field goal to cap it.

The fourth Calgary series on offence pitted a single when Robinson was wide on a 43-yard goal. The fifth drive failed to last and Calgary had to punt.

One of three occasions in the game such a situation arose.

The first of two interceptions by linebacker Don Stephenson gave Calgary the ball at Saskatchewan's 33-yard line and five plays later Robinson kicked a single on a 32-yard field goal attempt to deadlock the series point total at 30-10.

Calgary moved 60 yards after the second half kickoff and Robinson's third single on a field goal attempt put the Stampede ahead to stay on the semi-final.

Coleman's touchdown capped a 38-yard drive and Day's a 70-

Hot Stamps Impressed Leo Coach

VANCOUVER (CP)—The man who must prepare his team to meet the stamp-charged Calgary Stampede in the Western Football Conference final says Calgary was "about as good as any club is going to get" in Monday night's semifinal victory.

Dave Skrien, head coach of British Columbia Lions, termed Stampede "unbeatable" in the 51-6 victory over Saskatchewan which produced a 76-40 win in the two-game, total-point series.

Skrien said the size of the victory is "going to help Calgary as far as their own feeling is concerned."

But it won't be a concern for the Lions and they will prepare for Saturday's opener of the best-of-three final on the basis of "what we already knew," about Stampede.

There were no new or fancy plays in the Calgary book, Skrien said.

Chualo Barely Missed Kickoff

HULL, Que. (CP)—A few hours before Monday night's fight a reporter asked George Chualo if he was disappointed at having to miss the football playoff on television.

"What time does it start?" Chualo asked, and was told that it was at the same time as his scheduled 10-round bout against Calvin Butler of Cleveland.

"Heck, I'll miss the kickoff," Chualo said.

The Canadian heavyweight champion was only a bit off. He had his technical knockout victory wrapped up at 2:35 of the third round and caught the Western Football Conference playoff midway through the first quarter.

Most of the Hull-Ottawa Area fight fans stayed home and caught it all. Only 1,543 attended the fight.

Butler spent much of the first two rounds holding and leaning. The 27-year-old Toronto star, two years younger than his American opponent, at one point practically dragged Butler across the ring trying to tear loose.

In the third, Chualo had Butler pouncing off the ropes with his slashing punches to the mid-section.

The 218-pound Cleveland Negro, who was previously knocked out eight times in 19 fights, looked flabby. Chualo, who had been in training most of the time since his victory last month over Doug Jones of New York, was a rock-hard 211 pounds.

Why Do Pointers Point?

They were trained that way. Actually, the pointer is a setter, and in the days before guns he was trained to crouch down when he spotted birds. This enabled the hunter to creep up on the birds and net them. With development of guns, the hunter was able to bag his game long-range, and the setter was then taught to point.

Q: What is the difference between soft bill and hard bill birds?

A: As the name implies, a soft bill bird has a soft bill and must eat soft foods—such as worms, insects, berries. A hard bill bird has a hard bill and can crack seeds and other hard substances.

Q: At a recent cat show I saw for the first time a beautiful animal with a distinctive coat that looked like brown sable. I can't recall the breed. Would you know?

A: You are referring to the Burmese breed, which is the only all-brown cat acknowledged by cat fanciers. It has a satin-like coat of sable brown. It's a delightful but rare breed with an exceptionally affectionate nature.

Q: My son recently found a darling baby mockingbird which he would like to keep as a pet. Is there any harm in caging him?

A: First thing to do is check your local authorities. It's against the law in some areas of the U.S. to cage many wild birds. If your state has no restrictions, be certain that you put your mockingbird in an extra large cage. Mockingbirds are aggressive and vigorous and they require much activity. Your pet must have plenty of room.

Q: My Boxer, Martha, is 9 years old and never has been bred. Can she have pups now or is she too old?

A: Yes, Martha can still bear pups. However, because of her age and the fact that she hasn't delivered pups before, it would be advisable to put her under the care of your veterinarian during both her prenatal and postnatal periods.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jerry Lee, age 11, of Shreveport, La., for his question:

Will we ever use up all the air?

Fresh air is a mixture of gases, most of which do us no harm and help us only indirectly. The bulk of the mixture is nitrogen, a lazy gas that tends to blanket fires and slow down burning processes of all kinds. Without all this nitrogen, forest fires would blaze away uncontrolled and our bodies would burn up their fuel at a furious rate. If all the nitrogen were not present in the air, most likely the earth would have become a cinderly pile of charred rubble long ago.

Argon and neon gases, krypton and xenon are present in the air in tiny traces. These rare and lazy gases seem to do us no good and no harm. The vital gas, needed to sustain both plant and animal life, is oxygen. And the plant world as well as the animal world uses up countless tons of this precious gas every hour of every day and night. It is natural to wonder how long the present supplies of precious oxygen will last us.

If no fresh oxygen were added to the air, the present supply might last only a few weeks or months. All the air, as far as we are concerned, would be used up in less than a year. But this cannot happen. At least it cannot happen as long as there are grassy meadows and leafy woods, thick evergreens and dense jungles. For countless tons of fresh oxygen are poured into the atmosphere by the plant world every day.

Plants Provide Oxygen

Respiration is the breathing process by which we take in oxygen and return carbon dioxide to the air. Plants also carry on respiration. But during the daylight hours they also carry on the process of photosynthesis. This is the magic recipe for using sunlight to make plant food from air and water. To make it work, green plants must take in carbon dioxide and return oxygen to the air.

The earth's green foliage uses the waste carbon dioxide given off by both the plant and animal world. During the daylight hours of photosynthesis it returns oxygen to the air—more oxygen than the plant world needs. The air, then, will never be used up as long as there are green plants, water and sunshine upon the earth.

The air is replenished with oxygen by a process of give-and-take between the plant world and the animal world. The plants, perhaps, could manage without us. In their own process of respiration that goes on day and night they provide some of the carbon dioxide they need for photosynthesis during the daylight. But we would perish without the oxygen they supply—and so would the animals. In return, we let the plant world have all our waste carbon dioxide that they can use.

Who was captain of the Mayflower?

The little sailing ship was 90 feet long and weighed no more than 180 tons. On Sept. 16, 1620, she set forth from Plymouth, England, bearing a band of Pilgrims to a new life in the New World. The master who captained the Mayflower on his historic voyage was Christopher Jones, and this Captain Jones owned a quarter share of the ship.

3,000 Expected For First B.C. Scout Jamboree

Three thousand Boy Scouts and their leaders are expected to attend the first provincial jamboree ever held in B.C., scheduled for the summer of 1966.

Scouts from other provinces, the United States and Japan are also expected.

The camp will be set up near Pentlitzon July 9-16.

Lawrence Dampier of Vancouver, chairman of the jamboree committee for the provincial Scout council, said he expects it to be the largest provincial jamboree ever organized in Canada.

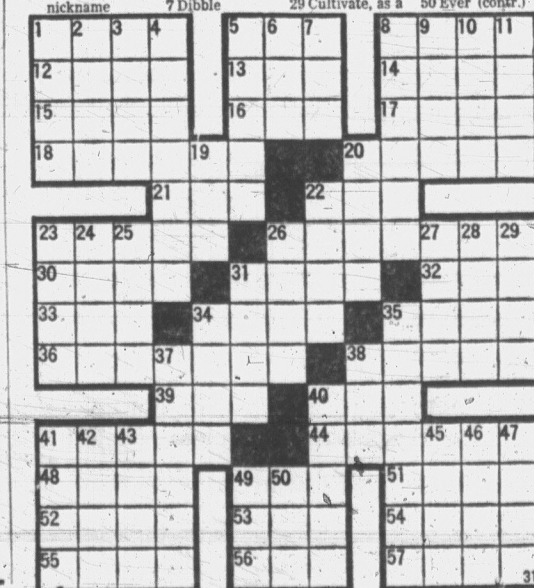

C. W. Nash, provincial commissioner, has been appointed camp chief.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Don't look now, but those wicked, lascivious, risqué New York night club shows are changing to family style stuff.

Robert Goulet comes out at the Plaza Persian Room and introduces his expectant wife, Carol Lawrence, who, he remarks, is having the baby—a boy, he states—in about three weeks. Carol remarks to me, sitting next to her, that she has dreamed she has the baby in the middle of his act.

Rosemary Clooney over at the Americana Royal Box brings out large pictures, about seven feet high, of each of her five children and fills the stage with this family album. She introduces the five kids (from their pictures) and sings their favorite Mickey Mouse song.

Rosie's husband, Jose Ferrer, beams from the ringside. She is so elegant, snapping her fingers though wearing long white gloves, that we were glad she finally took them off. She was also so shapely and girlish and decollete that we could believe it when she sang "There Is Nothing Like a Dame."

It was Celebrity night at the Goulet opening with Van Johnson, George Maharis, Ford and Hines, Skitch Henderson, Morton DaCosta and Norm Crosby cheering the very slim Goulet who worked with a "walkie-single mike" and used comedian Alan King as a joke target.

While singing "Why Can't a Woman Be Like a Man?" Goulet sang at King. "Would you be wounded if I didn't send you flowers?" King shouted "YES!" Loyal workers for defeated Senator Keating say President Johnson phoned him from Texas and offered him a U.S. post... Is Rex Harrison's "Fair Lady" (Rachel Roberts) expecting? That's the bizzzz among Londoners who just love her in "Magie May"... Lenny Bruce, found guilty of obscenity, commented, "It's a X-X-X-X-X-miscarriage of justice!"

My favorite bellydancer, sultry Nai Bonet, who teaches Shirley MacLaine to bellydance in "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home," is studying at Philip Burton's Musical and Dramatic Academy—and has been offered more movie roles by Shirley's husband, producer Steve Parker. "Shirley's now an excellent bellydancer," says Nai. "I showed her how to make her spine wave and her stomach ripple."

Nai, who was born in Saigon, Viet Nam; the first of the NY bellyrinas to crash Hollywood, says bellydancing is "infectious."

"While dancing at a convention recently," Nai says, "I stopped suddenly—to laugh at the audience. They were all following my head movements, and my stomach rippling while they were sitting down—and they were all men."

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months. This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

HE DOZED, COURT DENIES CITIZENSHIP

SEATTLE (AP) — Albert Smith, an aerospace engineer from England, was denied U.S. citizenship Monday because, the judge said, he fell asleep during the naturalization ceremony.

U.S. district Judge William Beeks ordered this entry on Smith's naturalization petition: "Cause of denial: Went to sleep in court during naturalization ceremony and while court was speaking."

Smith, born in Hammer Vale, Hampshire, England, insisted he did not go to sleep. Immigration Director John Boyd said, Smith can file again for citizenship.

Potatoes Are Modest

If you serve baked potatoes slashed so that their insides are popping out of their skins, they're almost modest. Till you cover them with a big blob of butter. Dress them even more glamorously by adding cottage cheese or dairy sour cream, and freshly ground pepper, crumbled bacon bits, chopped chives or parsley. Sometime try adding grated cheddar and parmesan too.

"Minted" Carrots

Want to know a different way to glaze carrots once you've cooked them? Just heat them for about five minutes in a few tablespoons each of butter and mint jelly, or in butter and a little dried mint.

Sweet Potato Gems

Here's a dish both the children and the man of the house will love. Cook one sweet potato or yam per person, mash with butter, and shape into mounds on a cookie sheet. With a teaspoon, make a small depression in the center of each. Brown a few minutes in a hot oven, then just before serving fill the depression with cranberry sauce.

Daily Quota

If you've been wondering just how many servings of vegetables children should enjoy every day, here's the answer. Canadian nutritionists recommend that both children and adults include one daily serving of potatoes, and at least two servings each day of other vegetables, especially the green and yellow ones, and frequently served raw and crispy.

Sleight of Hand

The sneakiest way to slip leftover vegetables into the menu is to serve them "au gratin". Which, translated, simply means to dress them up in your very best cream sauce, sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs and grated cheese, then broil until bubbly. Our choice of cheese? Either Canadian Cheddar or Parmesan fills the bill to perfection.

Gourmet Touch

Here's a new twist for serving hot green beans or spinach to guests. Just blend 1 or 2 tablespoons of light table cream and about 1/2 teaspoon celery seeds into a 4-ounce package of soft cream cheese. Then stir the cheese into the hot cooked vegetables and heat carefully until the cheese melts.

You know what you like in whiskies. You've probably been living with the one kind for five, ten, maybe twenty years.

All we ask is one minute.

We think that's all it will take to change your mind. That, and merely one taste of a whisky called Time.

You'll find you have never known a rye like this. The taste is light, warm, smooth. A gentle whisky—but not at all kind to old habits.

It gives you a lot to think about for 60 seconds.

Time enough.

We haven't much concerned ourselves with the national defence people's plan to integrate Canada's three services—too busy sweeping up maple leaves—but the other day a rather disconsolate member of our tripartite forces raised the subject in the course of a mug-up with this department.

His uniforms, says he, are growing shiny in the seat, but his wife feels he should postpone replacements. "I guess she's right," our guy admitted. "After all, who can tell what we'll be wearing a year from now?"

This distressing uncertainty is reflected in odds and sods of gallows humor that drift out to civvie street.

Example: Air Force and Navy are discussing integration. The debate grows hot.

Finally one of the boys delivers his clincher.

"You mean," he demands, "that you wouldn't care if your sister married an army type?"

The displaced chum finished his coffee and, sighing, reached for a cap that's also growing a touch shabby.

"My branch," he confided, "has taken to calling itself 'The Mushroom Flat.' They keep us in the dark, and every now and then someone comes out from Ottawa and sprinkles us with you-know-what."

Matter of fact, the sprinkling doesn't seem to be confined to the military.

How, I ask you, does a policy of national thrift justify a $2,500 French-language entrance sign for a research laboratory on this English-speaking western island?

Let us now pay a call on the boys of St. Margaret's School for girls, a Fort Street landmark which just might manage to replace its white-pillared main building with a new one in a couple of years.

Boys I said, and boys I mean. If sturdy male bachelors stubbornly anchored in a feminine sea. Here, through kindergarten and grades one and two, they are permitted to remain. Then they must doff their little red blazers with the "S.M.S." crest, and venture into a new, but not necessarily sterner world.

Meanwhile, as who can blame them, they stick together. No one, not even Ottawa, can force integration upon them.

Junior school classes separate them. But released to the playground they reunite their ranks, a band of brothers addressing themselves to their own manly diversions with a watchful eye on the skirted foe.

All this will change, of course, and no doubt some enchanted evening about 12 years distant one of these selfsame lads will gladly suture a lovely enemy of 1964 to her graduation dance.

Anyway, who knows but what this early schooling in female ways and wiles will serve them well in a world that grows more matriarchal each year?

My car, which has been dragging its wheels about getting a dose of anti-freeze, is chilly as an icebox these brisk mornings, and I find myself remembering nervously what happened on Remembrance Day of 1955.

It was cold at the forenoon Cenotaph Services, with a flurry of snow to harry the marching veterans.

As the day progressed, the cold grew ever more bitter, striking treacherously in an autumn which had been unusually mild.

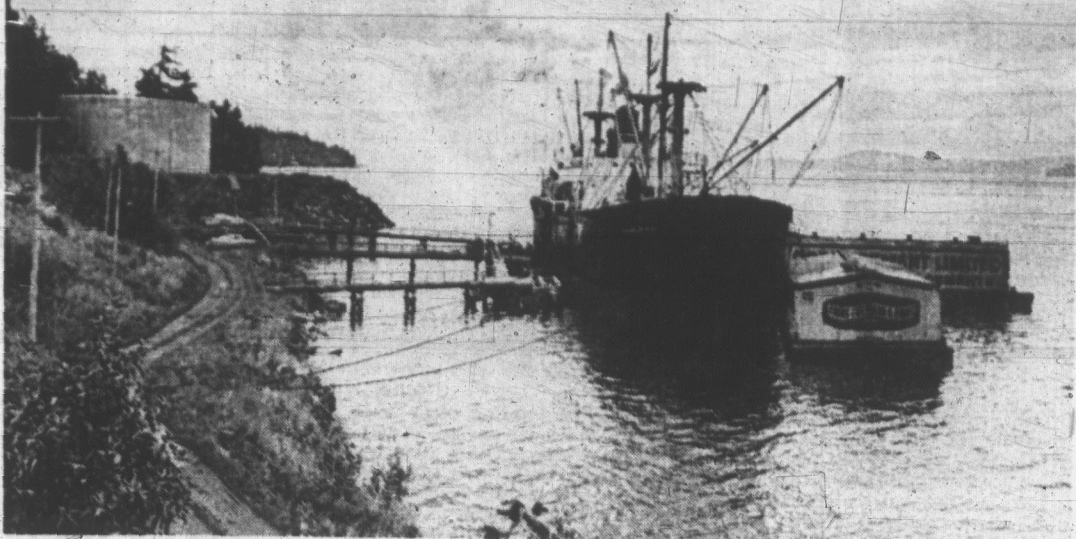

By mid-evening, garagemen were dispensing anti-freeze on an emergency basis. Even so, the bleak morning light of Nov. 12 found many an unwary motorist bawling a cracked engine block.

In that one night, most of Victoria's tender Monterey cypress hedges were killed from tip to root. The sap, still in twigs and trunk, exploded the tissues when it froze.

A snowfall which racked up $2750 in removal fees added to Victoria's tribulations, and the fact that we'd shattered the all time November low-temperature record with overnight drops to 20 and even 12 degrees above zero was cold comfort.

This year, weatherman Bill Mackie tells me, we can anticipate a cool and mostly cloudy Remembrance day, with nothing to indicate any such sneak attack as was launched by Old Man Winter nine years ago.

Still, let's keep our fingers crossed, huh?

$3 Million, 320 Workers Solution to Hospital Woes

By PETE LOUDON

Greater Victoria hospitals require $3 million and 320 additional employees.

That's what it will take to provide 160 more beds and wipe out a waiting list affecting some 1,300 residents to a greater or lesser degree.

That's the finding of a committee studying the bed shortage which has inflamed this area recently.

It was submitted to Greater Victoria Hospital Administrators' Council today by committee chairman John S. Holdstock, Queen Alexandra Solarium administrator.

Mr. Holdstock told the Times that his report merely blocks out the problem.

But he has recommended formation of a metropolitan hospital council to find the answers.

This solution was immediately interpreted by one section of government as a spur to local municipal planners now tangling with the proposed formation of a form of semi-metro government in Greater Victoria.

"There's no question about it. That's the answer," said Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

"This was a suggested function of the Joint Services Council (the formal name of the proposed semi-metro body)."

"We welcome the report and hope the municipal leaders will see fit to act on it," Mr. Campbell added.

Mr. Holdstock's committee was formed on suggestion of Health Minister Martin in June.

Although some 1,300 persons are known to have need of hospital services, only about 700 are in the urgent category and less than 100 are classed as emergent.

The report didn't say so, but it is presumed that if 160 beds were available, and staffed, the whole list would disappear in three and a half months.

There is room for 80 of the 160 necessary beds at Royal Jubilee and room for another 20 at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Provision of the whole 160 and related services would mean an expenditure of about $3 million, says Mr. Holdstock.

STAFF PROBLEM

Mr. Holdstock agrees that the most difficult problem will be that of acquiring staff—about two people per bed. About 45 per cent of this additional staff of 320 must be highly trained in nursing or technician fields.

"We have just been able to open a door, and I would have liked to have had time to look behind it."

"It is dead easy to build beds but we must know what type we need, where they should be located, how they should be staffed and serviced."

In unorganized areas of B.C., the provincial statutes provide for creation of hospital improvement districts—fund-raising groups which take the lead from hospital boards in dealing with the community. But there is no district organization for Victoria, lower mainland which have 50 per cent of the beds.

Here is where a metro planning board must take up the slack, according to many hospital authorities.

$1.5 MILLION

In this area, the $3 million price tag for provision of the needed beds would mean a bill of $1.5 million for the participating municipalities, the remainder of the cost being met by the federal and provincial governments.

If semi-metro never comes about and the need is met by those urban areas which have financed hospital construction locally in recent years, the breakdown of sharing would be expected to parallel that of 1962.

On a per capita basis, Victoria would provide 43.24 per cent of the pot, Saanich 33.28, Oak Bay 14.28 and Esquimalt 9.19 per cent.

Divers Abandon Search for Body Off Brochie
The mystery of whether or not a woman's body lies in deep water off Brochie Ridge is still unsolved today after Royal Canadian Navy divers' search Monday.

The divers found the area of their search to be more than 200 feet deep greater than the level at which they can dive safely.

The divers were called in by RCMP after a city fisherman hooked a heavy object on his line Sunday morning. The object slipped off his tackle but when he brought up the line he found a brassiere attached to it.

He threw it back in the sea but later reported his find to police.

RCMP said this morning that a decision will be made later this week on whether the search will be continued using more elaborate equipment.

BUSY TIME FOR ALUMNI

Students are taking the lead in homecoming events lined up for this weekend at University of Victoria.

Notices have gone out to 300 alumni reminding them of dances, special features, sports and the installation of university president Dr. Malcolm Taylor.

The installation Saturday at 2 p.m. will be highlight of the homecoming, and will include full academic regalia and procession, plus the conferring of four honorary degrees.

FATALITY HEARING ADJOURNED

An RCMP officer who investigated a fatal accident testified Monday that he concluded one car crossed a double-solld line before it hit the other vehicle.

Constable W. T. Hillecoat said he decided to charge the driver of the car, Joseph Chambers, 30, of 957 Westing Road, with unbalanced driving.

This charge was later withdrawn and a new one of criminal negligence laid against Chambers. The officer was giving evidence at the preliminary hearing of this charge.

Leading Seaman Warner Shick, 30, of HMCS Naden, lost his life in the crash at Craigflower and Aral early on the morning of Oct. 24.

A passenger in Shick's vehicle, John Merrifield, 332 Forward, said he got the impression that Shick made a sudden turn to the right just before the impact.

The hearing was adjourned to Nov. 12 when Crown prosecutor Louis Lindholm indicated he will call two more witnesses.

'Locked' Safe Yields $4,270

Thief Knew Combination Say Police

A thief who knew the safe combination stole $4,270 from the Victoria office of B.C. Central Credit Union over the weekend.

The robbery was reported by city police this morning.

Police said they are satisfied that the safe was properly locked at close of business Saturday.

The money was discovered missing Monday morning. There was no sign of forced entry to the office or the safe.

Mrs. Mabel Rye, the credit union's office manager, said only union employees have legal knowledge of the combination that opens the safe.

MANY HAVE KEYS

She said keys to the office however are held by many people.

B.C. Central Credit Union is a clearing house and "mother" credit union to smaller unions throughout the province.

Its Victoria office at 1411 Blanshard also serves as offices for Victrol Credit Union, Co-Op Insurance, C.U. & C. Health Services and IWA Credit Union.

KNOWLEDGEABLE

City police are working on the theory that the robbery was committed by someone who knew a lot about the credit union's operations.

Detectives worked on the case all day Monday and were interviewing more people today. A spokesman said several persons they want to interview are out of town.

Mrs. Rye said a safe expert told her Monday it would be easy for someone to determine the combination by watching the safe being opened.

IS OPEN

She said the safe is deliberately placed where it can be seen by passers-by. Anyone standing outside the window could see it being opened.

But Mrs. Rye said union personnel have been told never to open the safe if they see anyone looking in the window.

She said the loss is fully covered by insurance.

CRUMP WON'T SAY

'Drastic Surgery' Facing Empress?

By ROGER STONEBANKS

If the Empress Hotel is going to get the axe, Canadian Pacific Railway officials aren't saying.

Board chairman N. R. Crump was asked about the hotel's future, with rumors current the company plans to either sell it, or demolish one part and erect a modern motor inn.

He said the hotel faced problems with the number of motels built recently in Victoria, that the Empress was under study, "but no decision has been made."

"I am hopeful we will retain the Empress in one form or another for some time to come," he said.

Reporters at a press conference immediately asked him if he had doubts about the hotel, but he would only say, "I would rather not go into that."

At a civic reception later, Mayor R. B. Wilson said "drastic surgery" may be needed to put the Empress in a profitable position.

"But we do hope that the changes will not destroy the atmosphere that has been so symbolic of the Empress over the years."

Mr. Crump and 17 directors of CPR held their first board meeting in Victoria Monday. He said the meeting was routine and there were no announcements to be made.

He would not say if the company's logging subsidiary, Pacific Logging Ltd., is going to build a pulp mill on the island.

"We are looking at propositions all the time," he said.

He was "very pessimistic" about the future of railway passenger service.

"I can see no future in railway passenger traffic. Eighty-six per cent of the inter-city passenger miles is by car."

"A lot of us might live to see the complete elimination of it." "It could well be" that rapid transit service would be left to Canadian National and how long the trans-continental service would run "is a question."

He emphasized that trains wouldn't disappear because of the importance of freight. There weren't many passenger trains left anyway, and freight boosted the railway division of the company into its biggest profit-making section.

ENCOURAGING

A CPR vice-president, Ian Sinclair, said the company planned to expand its aerial fertilization program to speed growth of trees in the Lake Cowichan area.

A controlled experiment was made last year, and an operational experiment this year. Progress was "most encouraging."

In other matters, Mr. Crump said CPR is "very interested" in the bulk carrier ship field and contracts for two 65,000-ton carriers in Japan should be completed by the end of 1966.

Use of pipelines to transmit solid objects "might very well be interesting."

Asked to give his business forecast for next year, he said every indication showed a 6 to 7 per cent increase in gross national product over 1964.

The CPR directors left today for further meetings in Vancouver.

Teachers Pick Woman Arbiter In Pay Dispute

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association today named retired salary negotiator Mrs. Hazel Rodson as arbiter in their contract dispute with school trustees.

Conciliation proceedings entered into last week collapsed Monday night with teachers and trustees separated by a gulf of about 3 per cent on the salary scale.

Trustees were to meet tonight to appoint their arbiter. Between the two appointees, a third person will be named as chairman of the arbitration board, or failing agreement on a chairman, he will be named by an outside party.

'UNLOADED GUN' BLAST JUST MISSES NEIGHBOR

A woman quietly doing needlework in her home Monday night came within four feet of being shot by a bullet that was accidentally fired in another house 130 feet away.

Mrs. A. J. Muddle, 344 Vincent, was sitting in the kitchen when the shot came through the door of her house.

It passed four feet from her, went through a wall and hit the bathtub in an adjoining room.

Saatch police discovered the shot came from the home of Alex Dobbie, 325 Walter.

Police said Mr. Dobbie was showing a .300 rifle to Ronald Gill, 37 Gorge. He was demonstrating it with a scope and without one.

Police said the trigger must have been squeezed accidentally. Both men told police they were not aware the gun was loaded. It left the Dobbie home through a veranda wall and travelled 130 feet into the Muddle household.

'Political Courage' Needed for Merger

A merger of Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Air Lines would "take a lot of political courage," Air Canada president Gordon McGregor of Montreal said today.

"But I am sincerely convinced this is the right answer," he said before speaking to the Kiwanis Club at noon in the Empress Hotel.

Such a merger would result in "tremendous economies" and remove duplication of functions among the two air lines.

It just wasn't true that without internal competition prices would go up.

"That's just a philosophy of management," he said.

LOWER FARES

"One effect would probably be a lowering of fares."

Such a merged air line "could be owned by anybody."

It could be government-owned, privately-owned or a combination of both, like KLM in Holland.

If the government didn't have ownership it wouldn't result in the private air line dropping uneconomic routes because the government controlled the air lines anyway through licensing.

Mr. McGregor didn't think Air Canada would drop its feeder service into Victoria because of "tough" ferry competition because it was a good service to trans-continental flights.

"Like most short runs it probably loses money but you have to credit some revenue from trans-continental flights to feeder operations," he said.

PREMIUM FARE

He saw the future of super-sonic airliners as providing a swift low ribbon service at a premium fare.

There would be more comfort and improvements in reservations and ticketing in the future, and "quite soon" it would be possible to walk into an airplane without going out doors.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE

Bravery Citations Urged For City, Oak Bay Firemen

Four Greater Victoria firemen, two each from Oak Bay and the city, have been recommended for St. John Ambulance awards for bravery.

The names will not be released until the recommendations have been approved by the St. John Ambulance Grand Priory in England.

The Oak Bay firemen were cited for "remarkable gallantry and courage" in the rescue of three-year-old Theresa Harding from the basement of her burning house at 1899 Foul Bay Road, Oct. 5.

Although the girl was alive when taken from the fire, she died a few hours later in hospital.

The report accompanying the recommendation for the two city firemen stated they "risked their lives" in saving a man from a house fire on Sept. 2.

All four men have been trained in life saving by the Victoria branch of the St. John Ambulance and hold certificates of proficiency.

Rugged Types Melt When They See These!

By PENNY SAVER

Have you ever tried to get a nice, not-too-expensive gift for the man who supposedly has everything? Penny has that problem every Christmas. However, most of the men on her list are the outdoor types who adore hunting and fishing and so Penny went shopping for gift items that sportsmen would really "go for."

One article I found is just the thing for the deer hunter—or any other type of hunter as well. It's a hunting knife. It's shaped with a curved handle and the balance and design of it won an award at the Brussels World's Fair.

The knife is made of steel which is guaranteed not to soften, and it is razor sharp! The handle of the Canadian-made knife is shaped to fit the hand so as not to slip when the hunter is cleaning his prize. It comes with a fitted leather belt case. The set costs $8.50.

For those who are inclined to fishing, store has accessories for both salt-water and fresh-water fishermen. One item is a stereoam bait box that will keep herring strip or whatever live bait you use fresh for hours. Box is priced at $2.75.

Another popular accessory with fishermen is a tackle box. The ones Penny found are of unbreakable, rust-proof plastic, and range in price from $4.50 to $24. (Some women I know buy tackle boxes and convert them to jewelry containers!)

Hunters who have claimed the rumpus room as their own and have turned them into a private haven for woodsmen may like a gun rack which provides a touch of the Old West to decorate their retreat. These are horseshoe-shaped steel and are easily attached to wall or mantel. The price is $3.25 a pair. Wooden racks, designed to hold four guns, are $6.

Store has a variety of other items to please a sportsman, such as wading boots, tackle, telescopic gun sights for rifles and gun stocks.

Are you in a quandary as to gifts for the rugged types on your shopping list? Then give Penny a call at 382-3131 and find out where she shopped.

DEAR ABBY...

Mountainous Mole Hill!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for 24 years and we have no problems except that my wife likes to read the newspaper in bed before going to sleep. I like to read in bed, too, but my wife is still reading the newspaper long after I doze off. She has a certain way of turning the pages with a quick SWISH, which invariably wakes me up. (Now that I have put it in writing it looks like such a silly little thing but, Abby, you have no idea how irritating this can be!)

She promised a few times that she would not read the newspaper in bed any more, but she always starts up again. I just moved into another bedroom. No fights. Just a decision. Was I wrong?

ETHEL'S PARTNER

DEAR PARTNER: No. It's too bad that more people don't realize that the biggest chasm in the world started with the tiniest gap.

DEAR ABBY: Last August a niece of mine was married. Two of my daughters were bridesmaids and my little boy was the ring-bearer. There were three showers for the bride which my daughters and I attended. (This meant NINE separate gifts.) In addition to that, we gave her a very expensive wedding present. The bridesmaids' dresses were store-bought and came to $49.50 each. I am not counting shoes, gloves and incidentals. The boy's ring-bearer suit was made by a dressmaker and that wasn't cheap, either. You can imagine how much all this added up to, but I'm not complaining. I loved every minute of it.

My sister (the bride's mother) paid a photographer to come and take pictures of the wedding. She had a book made up and it was beautiful. I asked for a picture or two. My sister said I could BUY them from the photographer. I told her the one that was in the newspaper would do me all right. Now she's peeved at me and refuses to talk to me. Will you please tell me if relatives and members of the bridal party are supposed to BUY pictures?

ONLY A SISTER

DEAR ONLY: Close relatives and members of the bridal party are usually GIVEN a picture of themselves and one of the bridal couple. Your sister is either uninformed or tapped out. (And possibly both!)

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and engaged to be married soon. I wear braces on my teeth and have for two years. My dentist tells me that I must wear these braces for another year. He has offered to remove them for my wedding if I will let him put them back on afterwards. My fiancé feels that I should get married with the braces and complete the treatment. I just can't see myself getting married with braces on my teeth. And then wearing them after I am married.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

A new wrinkle has been added to theatre-going circles in Vancouver. The Playhouse Theatre, now in its second season, has decided to get into the baby-sitting business.

As of last month, mothers attending Saturday matinees can bring little Johnny or Matilda along as well. While Mum sits, blinded by the hypnotic footlights, her small son and daughter are having an equally good time, munching on cookies and sipping lemonade in a special room set aside for the purpose. Wet diapers pose no problem, as these are changed as required.

The free baby-sitting service is provided by the 100-strong volunteer group attached to the theatre. There's a nurse in attendance and a psychologist for babes with problems. The psychologist is also a volunteer.

With Victoria's McPherson Theatre due to ring up its first curtain at the end of next February, it seems to me that this is an idea that could do a great deal toward warming up our city's theatrical climate. Robert Ellison, manager of Victoria's new theatre, agrees.

Says Mr. Ellison: "I can't understand why other theatres haven't done the same thing a long time ago. It allows a very important audience to enjoy the theatre. There are many housewives whose husbands are not ardent theatre-goers and this provides a wonderful opportunity for them to round out their lives."

Mr. Ellison points out that the Playhouse Theatre is being contacted with the aim of the mainland shows being shown here first. "We would like to see their plays have a gala opening here, say for three or four days—even a week—and then continue in their own theatre."

Would Like One Here

Mr. Ellison, who works out of City Hall these days, is enthusiastic about getting a similar volunteer group for the McPherson Theatre. And, knowing the community spirit of many of Victoria's women, I'm willing to bet that our theatre will have one long before its second season rolls around.

Asked whether there was a suitable room in the building, large enough to act as a "nursery" and "kindergarten," Mr. Ellison feels that there "are areas of space that could be utilized."

He also warns that wherever the room is, it should be soundproof.

The mainland theatre made another experiment on the first day the baby-sitting service went into action. During the last act, some of the older children were taken up to see part of the performance. This, too, was reported a great success, with some of the tots becoming almost instantaneous drama devotees.

They seemed to enjoy the magic of grease paint just as much as the games, coloring books, toys and attention they received prior to their "graduation."

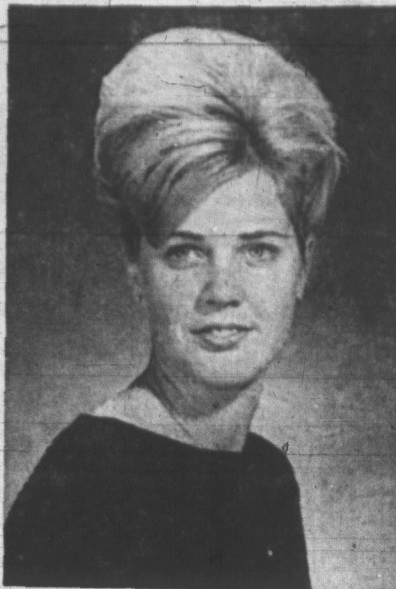

Those that weren't grown up enough to see the play, didn't entirely miss out on the fun. The cast of the play, "Ring the Moon," visited them to show their costumes.

Indeed, the whole experiment lends itself as a worthwhile and sustaining project with which the women of Victoria could contribute to the attractions of Centennial Square.

And, 20 years from now, the babies that attended the mass "bottle parties" of our theatre's infancy would undoubtedly be ready to take their turn in nurturing an important part of their city's social life.

Lt.-Cmdr. E. S. Cassels, RCN (Ret.) and Mrs. Cassels, 1196 Highrock Avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Anne, to Mr. Grant Cordell MacFarlane, only son of Mr. and Mrs. K. D. MacFarlane, 2886 Murray Drive. The wedding will take place on Saturday, November 21, at 7:30 p.m., in St. John's Anglican Church. Canon George Biddle will officiate. (Chapman Photography.)

ST. MARK'S CHURCH

Kathleen York Wed In Saturday Ceremony

Baskets of chrysanthemums were at the altar of St. Mark's Anglican Church on Saturday evening when Canon Robert Willis heard marriage vows exchanged between Kathleen Muriel York and John Kenneth William Reilly.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank York, 307 Obed Avenue. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Reilly, 1179 Tattersall Drive.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of corded silk, highlighted with a lace bodice and matching lace panel that extended down the front of the full skirt. Her shoulder-length veil misted from a headpiece of stephanotis and pearls. American Beauty roses and pale pink carnations formed her cascade bouquet.

Identical sheath style gowns of American Beauty pink peau de sole with matching two-tier overskirts were worn by matron of honor, Mrs. Gordon Campbell, and maid of honor, Miss Rhonda Reilly, sisters of the principals. They carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations.

Best man was Dave Digby, Vancouver, and guests were ushered to their pews by Eric Nott and Tom Foster.

A three-tier all-white wedding cake, surrounded with rosebuds, centred the bride's table at a reception in the Colony Motel. Charles Davis proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on a honeymoon trip to California, the bride chose a sapphire-blue and navy tweed three-piece suit with feathered hat, tone, toning gloves and black patent accessories.

On return, the couple will make their home in Victoria.

Sex Course Applauded by Parents

An experimental sex education lecture for grade eight classes met enthusiastically and was previewed Monday night.

Greater Victoria school board in co-operation with Metro Health board invited the parents of 365 Oak Bay Junior Secondary School grade eight pupils to hear a lecture given by Metro Health deputy Dr. G. P. Evans. About 200 showed up.

The same lecture, demonstrated by plastic models of the reproductive system, will be given to grade eight children at Oak Bay Junior in about two weeks.

Parents, meanwhile, have been given consent forms to sign.

Those who do not wish their children to participate are told to ignore the forms, which should be returned by Thursday.

ONE LECTURE

It is planned to give one 30-minute lecture from 3:30 p.m. One or two periods of similar length would follow later in which questions arising from the material may be answered.

Boys and girls would take the lectures separately and a doctor would present the material. Planning for the course, called Family Life Education, started two years ago.

School trustees, Metro Health staff, teachers, principals and social workers co-operated to produce an acceptable format, which went before an advisory committee representing the clergy of Greater Victoria.

Dr. Evans, and Metro Health chief Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread answered more than a dozen questions after the preview lecture.

TOO MUCH

A number of mothers were concerned that so much material was being presented in only a half-hour lecture.

One woman said there was too much for herself to assimilate in that time, let alone for 12 to 14-year-olds.

"This has been satisfactory in other areas," Dr. Evans said, pointing out that supplementary booklets would be helpful to parents and children.

When others echoed the woman's point of view, Dr. Whitbread replied:

"You underestimate the intelligence of your children. They know a lot more about this subject than you think they do."

His remark drew more applause, and he continued: "But we are giving them the facts so they will know what is right and what is wrong."

A woman asked whether dating would be discussed in detail.

Dr. Evans said this was given only passing reference in order to keep the material down, but there was more on the subject in the booklets. He said they would be necessary to complement the lecture.

(He urged parents to buy The Doctor Talks to Nine to Ten-Year-Olds, and What Teen-Agers Want to Know, which are not commonly available but were obtained for the preview to sell for $1 each.)

DeMolay Sets Installation

John Hilliard will be installed as master councillor of Victoria Chapter, Order of DeMolay, Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Fellowship Hall, First United Church.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hilliard, 75 Linden.

Other top officers to be installed are Roger Kelly, senior councillor, and Tom Robinson, junior councillor.

Beverly Bray of Bethel No. 2, International Order of Job's Daughters, will be installed as chapter sweetheart.

Chapter officers and parents will attend 11 a.m. services Sunday at St. John's Anglican Church.

When should a parent begin telling a child about sex?

When the child asks his first question, such as where babies come from, Dr. Evans said. But the parent must give a simple answer, not trying to give the whole story at once, and tell it in terms of the child's comprehension.

LECTURE FIRST

He recommended that parents read the booklets first, then evaluate their own children as to whether they give them the booklets before or after the lecture. He would suggest the lecture first, he said.

Dr. Evans said the program deals with the moral and physiological aspects of sex as a child develops.

"Rightly, it should be left with the parents, but unfortunately emotionalism surrounds the child and parent, and often a lack of expert knowledge," he said.

Dr. Whitbread said parental lack of knowledge may be an effect of the "Victorian era." It is hoped, he said, to show how a sex education program can be worked into the ordinary school program, as first with doctors and nurses, later perhaps with teacher specialists.

OUTLYING AREAS

The pilot program was to be tried in outlying school districts 62, 63 and 64, he said.

The lecture began with the warning that material was being offered to pupils as young adults, not children, and that anatomy, physiology and pregnancy would be discussed frankly.

Sexual urges are strong, Dr. Evans said, because it is nature's way of ensuring propagation. But children in late adolescence can find pressure for sexual intercourse very strong, without realizing the real reason for the instinct to have children.

Oakalla-Bound, Claims Escapee

A prisoner who escaped from Wilkinson Road Jail last week said Monday he ran away because he wanted to go back to Oakalla Prison.

Paul Toth, a 41-year-old Hungarian immigrant, was given an additional two-year term that he will begin serving in Jan. 1966 when his present sentence expires.

Toth pleaded guilty to escaping custody and to breaking into two homes in the 300-block Goward where he stole clothes.

He ran away from the prison Saturday and was caught next morning in thick bush beside West Saanich Road.

Toth, speaking through an interpreter, said his only aim was to get clothes that would enable him to escape from Vancouver Island and go back to Oakalla.

Magistrate D. G. Ashby sentenced him to six months on the escaping charge and two years on the charges of breaking and entering. All three sentences will be served concurrently by starting at the expiry of the terms he is now serving for burglary.

Centennial Theatre Proposed at Uvic

A 500-seat theatre for the performing arts will be suggested by University of Victoria as a Greater Victoria Centennial project. Dr. Malcolm Taylor, president, told an informal press luncheon Monday—outlining the future of the university—that Uvic stands an excellent chance of becoming a cultural as well as academic centre, with adjuncts in a variety of fields. Later, Dr. Taylor said both Greater Victoria and B.C. centennial committees would be approached with the idea of pooling resources to build a campus theatre. DESIGN MODEL Preliminary concepts of an arts theatre are already being laid out in a design model. Its cylindrical shape could have a saucer-shaped floor and thrust stage. University planning, with or without centennial funds, includes the construction of a theatre, although this may not be possible within the span of the current five-year development program.

It is estimated that such a theatre would cost at least $1,000,000. Total centennial resources available for Greater Victoria would be less than $500,000. The proposed centennial project would be for "the public and the university to support the activities of McPherson (civic) Playhouse," Dr Taylor said. "Everything we would do would be in support of McPherson theatre," he added. TRAINING CENTRE "We will be a training centre to build up a group of actors and develop an audience."

The university has a nucleus of personnel in the performing and creative arts, including playwrights, authors, musicians and poets. Theatre work at the university today is conducted in a converted army hut at Gordon Head, and some productions are staged at Lansdowne auditorium, whose facilities are limited and uncomfortable. CLOSE LINKED The Organization of American States comprises 21 nations of North, Central and South America and the Caribbean, a political concept dating back to 1826.

Pension Plan Unveiled

OTTAWA (CP) — The third version of the complex Canada Pension Plan took legislative form Monday in the Commons. It is a brute of a bill, a half-inch thick and packed with implications for the lives and livelihood of 5,000,000 Canadians.

Introduction of the 125-section bill, one of the longest and most complex pieces of legislation ever seen in Parliament, came after a four-hour debate on the preliminary resolution stage during which opposition-MPs pledged careful scrutiny but voiced no immediate objections.

These are the next steps:

Second reading, or approval in principle, will be sought in the Commons. At this stage government speakers will deal with the financial and economic underpinning of the scheme. The government Monday night declined to reveal the reports on these aspects of the plan, though the actuarial survey already is in government hands.

Next step is to set up a joint Senate-Commons committee to study the bill in detail. It will have before it the detailed actuarial and economic reports. The committee likely will call expert witnesses, including officials of the insurance companies now administering private pension plans.

If both houses of Parliament subsequently give the bill final passage, the legislation will take effect in 1966 and will apply everywhere except in Quebec, which will have its own similar plan, or in any other province that sets up substantially the same scheme.

PLAN COMPULSORY

The federal plan will be compulsory for an estimated 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 Canadians. Forced to contribute will be all employees over 18 earning more than $50 a month or $600 a year, and all self-employed persons taking in more than $800 annually.

Rates of contributions and benefit levels are the same as those spelled out in the government's white paper last August. Briefly, the plan would start this way:

The first $600 of annual earnings is exempt. On the rest up to a $5,000-a-year maximum, the contribution rate is 3.6 per cent. This is shared equally by employees and employers but paid alone by the self-employed. For an employee earning at least $5,000 it means payments of $6.60 a month. These start in 1965.

Full benefits begin in 1976, though some are available at reduced levels in the first 10 years. The benefits will come in one cheque but take two forms: the contributory pension, plus the flat-rate old age security pension financed as at present out of taxes.

At age 65, a person retiring becomes eligible for the contributory pension which is 25 per cent of the average earnings on which contributions are made. Thus a person earning as much or more than the $5,000 income ceiling would receive about $104 monthly.

SECOND PENSION

In addition, the old age security payment which now is $75 a month at age 70 can be claimed, in reduced amounts, starting at age 65. It would be $51 at age 65. Thus a person retiring at age 65 would get a total of $155. If he waited until he was 70, he would get $179 a month.

This is how benefits will be paid in the 10-year transition period between 1966 and 1976:

After one year of operating the plan, a person who has contributed in 1966 and is 68 in 1967 will get a pension equal to 10 per cent of the full level. In each subsequent year, the age comes down until age 65 is reached in 1970 and at the same

MOTHER, 7 CHILDREN ESCAPE FLAMES AGAIN

By LESLIE MILLIN

Christine Crosby and her seven children are again homeless because of fire.

A neighbor saved two of Mrs. Crosby's brood from the fire that ripped through their home at 2741 Victor just before 3 a.m. today.

Mrs. Crosby moved into the house this summer after a fire destroyed her last home at 1039 Queens on July 2.

"It's just terrible, to happen again so soon," she told the Times this morning.

The fire began in a garage near the house, and wind carried the flames to ignite the house's shingled exterior.

Wood had been stored in the garage.

ARSON?

The fire department would not say how the fire began, but it is understood that the possibility of arson is being investigated.

The fire loss was estimated by Fire Chief John Abbott at about $3,000.

Suren Sather, 2743 Victor, carried two of the children from the burning home while flames charred the gable of his own next-door home a few feet away.

Mr. Sather, who will be 66 on Thursday, beat on the Crosby front door to rouse the family as his wife phoned the fire department. "She came to the door crying 'Save my children,'" Mr. Sather said.

'PRETTY HOT'

"I ran into the back bedroom looking for kids, and it was getting pretty hot in there.

"I pulled one of the smallest ones out of a bed, then happened to look in another bed across the room, and there was another one, so I carried both of them out.

"Anyone would have done it."

Mr. Sather was awakened by his wife, who saw light flickering on their bedroom wall from the flames outside the window.

INDIA CRISIS

'Give Us Rice Or Shoot Us'

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Shastri's food rationing program in the Indian Communist stronghold of Kerala State appeared shattered today. Looters demanding rice roamed large areas.

The situation held grave political implications for Shastri, who last week overruled advisers' warnings that the government machinery was too inefficient to handle rationing for Kerala's 20,000,000 people.

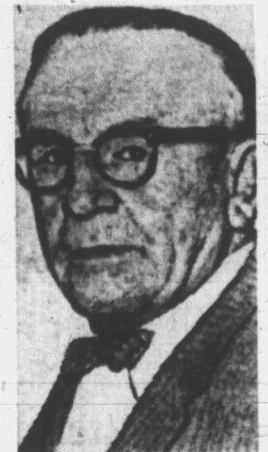

Shastri had hoped rationing in Kerala would point the way to solving the critical food shortages in other parts of India. But with normal marketing systems disrupted, rice and wheat all but disappeared from the shops. The government now is considering an airlift of rice.

Students led food riots throughout the state. The rioters stoned officials and police and looted shops, shouting, "give us rice or shoot us."

Mobs of 1,000 or more students marched in the state capital, Trivandrum, near the southern tip of India. Police used tear gas and clubs on demonstrators in Quilon. One crowd looted a passenger train at Kundara.

READY TO ACT?

Kerala has been a Communist stronghold since India gained independence in 1947, and it appeared to be only a matter of time before the Communists made some move to take advantage of the riots, as they have in other sections recently.

MUDSLIDE FURY RIPS 9 HOMES; WOMAN KILLED

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Rain was predicted today in southern California, where storm-triggered mudslides struck Monday with avalanche fury at areas saved earlier from dry-season brushfires.

One mudslide sluiced down a fire-denuded canyon and into a residential street, sweeping a fleeing housewife with it.

Police say Mrs. Aimee Miller may have been carried three-quarters of a mile and entombed in a catch basin along with cars, furniture and house-mass of mud.

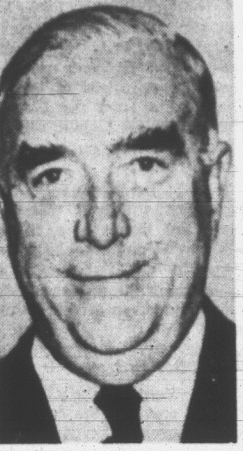

Her husband, William, 49, singer Frank Sinatra's accompanist, tried to save his wife from their crumbling home, and also was swept away. Firemen rescued him as he clung to a car in the swirling flood.

Their daughter, Meredith, 17, climbed uphill to safety as the family's canyon home twisted and cracked under the onslaught of mud.

The Miller home was destroyed and eight others damaged in the Verdugo Hills section of Burbank, a Los Angeles suburb, which is near the scene of a major brush fire in the foothills last spring.

"All it takes is a good downpour on open ground, where the native brush has been burned away," a weather bureau official said. "The water runs off, instead of sinking in. Even a moderate, localized shower can cause severe damage in the areas below."

Monday's rains were accompanied, in West Los Angeles and coastal regions, by a tornado—a rarity in southern California—which shredded patios, unsungled roofs, faced a house trailer in the opposite direction and scattered a manufacturer's store of 40,000 artificial Christmas trees over a three-block area.

MENZIES must be prepared

'Necessary To Meet War Risk'

CANBERRA (CP)—Australia will draft men for peacetime overseas service for the first time in its history, Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies announced tonight.

Menzies also announced greatly expanded defence expenditure for the next three years in the light of "an increased range of likely military situations we must be prepared to face."

He said these situations resulted from recent Indonesian policies and actions and the growth of Communist influence and armed activity in Laos and South Viet Nam.

Menzies was speaking in Parliament.

Indonesia has declared a confrontation policy towards Malaysia and has declared the 18-month-old federation of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah, is a neo-colonialist plot in South-east Asia.

"If Indonesian attacks continue Malaysia may find it intolerable to confine defensive measures to the guarding of Malaysia's shores and jungles against Indonesian intrusion," Menzies warned.

"These Indonesian attacks may create a real risk of war."

"We must prepare for all eventualities including the control and if necessary defence of the frontier between Papua and West New Guinea," he said.

Special Fund Could Absorb Transit Losses

VANCOUVER (CP)—An accountant testified Monday that B.C. Hydro has a contingency fund of almost $49,000,000 that should be used to absorb transit losses.

He said Hydro's proposed 10-cent bus fare increase is unwarranted.

Lionel Kent of Montreal, who was a financial advisor in court action challenging the government takeover of B.C. Electric, appeared before the Public Utilities Commission as a witness for 10 Greater Vancouver and Victoria municipalities fighting the proposed fare increase.

He said Chief Justice Sherwood Lett, in establishing a value for B.C. Electric shares, took into account losses sustained by BCE transit operations.

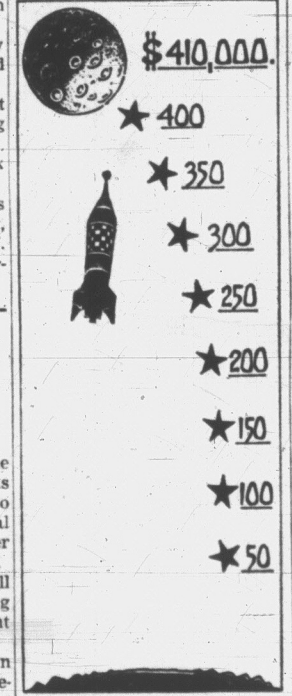

If the losses had not been taken into account, the final compensation for shareholders would have been $18,200,000 more.

He said this sum is, in effect, available to B.C. Hydro for reducing losses it inherited when it became the government-owned successor to BCE.

The sum, plus an account of $30,771,000 designed as "stabilization of rates and contingency reserve" could be used to absorb transit losses.

Mr. Kent also said Hydro has improperly included $454,100 in its costs for amortization or write-off of an old street railway system.

"Hydro has nothing to write off," he said. "It never made the investment in the first place."

NDP Win 'Indicates Trend' Says Douglas

OTTAWA (CP)—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said Monday night there are 40 to 50 constituencies in Ontario which might have produced the upset victory of the NDP in Waterloo South riding.

He told reporters that while he isn't predicting NDP victories in that many ridings in the next general election, the resounding defeat of the Liberal candidate and the smashing victory for the NDP "indicates a trend."

"We fought the election by saying that Waterloo South had a chance to speak for all the people of Canada in telling Parliament to get down to some bread-and-butter issues. The voice of the electorate in this matter has been heard, and I hope it will be heard by Parliament."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said through a spokesman that he was naturally disappointed at his party's not regaining the old Conservative seat.

"The imposition of a candidate by the Liberal party brass—the personal choice of the prime minister—drove many Liberal voters into the NDP camp, giving the NDP the necessary majority by combined support," he said.

The byelections were regarded as a test of the NDP attempts to find a middle ground, between the contending Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

NDP sources here said their campaign centred on the theme that the Conservatives proved inadequate to govern from 1957-62 and the Liberals were proving no more effective.

In addition, the British Labor party's general election victory may have convinced some voters that if the usually stable British voter could give Labor his confidence the New Democrats, who have a kind of affinity for the British Labor party, might be tried.

Australia bein' our antipodes, it has a lot of understanding.

Th' experts say yestiddy's byelections didn't actually reflect national opinion. Neither did th' last general election.

M' Uncle Zeke sez th' new pension plan's like his wife—it's broader, sez more an' there's no escape from it.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Critical Period for Japanese

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Several months ago a group of Vancouver Stock Exchange officials visited Japan and came back with glowing reports of investment opportunities in the Land of the Rising Sun.

They were enthusiastic about common stock yields ranging as high as 12 per cent, growth possibilities and signs that the Japanese stock markets appeared to be recovering from a steep three-year-long plunge.

Judging from a feature article in the current issue of Business Week magazine, however, it appears that the Vancouver visitors to Japan were overly optimistic about the Japanese situation.

The article is of particular interest to British Columbians since Japan is a major customer for the output of B.C.'s mines and has been a supplier of large amounts of capital for development.

It points out that while the Japanese economy is thriving, it is also going through a critical period. Business output is high and capital investment is strong, but corporate profits are being squeezed bankruptcies among small and medium-sized companies are piling up at record rates and surplus goods are choking the market.

Accompanying these conditions there has been a sharp fall in stock prices which, says Business Week,

"is flashing a warning for the world to see."

The stock price fall has been so drastic, indeed, that the government has had to put a floor under the market in order to keep it from complete collapse. The Bank of Japan has made special two-month loans available to the credit agency of the Tokyo Stock Exchange which will in turn be made available to securities firms to finance stock purchases to buoy up the market.

The government has also banned new capital issues of more than $850,000 until February and for the following six months special permission will be needed for new stock issues. No dividends can be paid by any company not already paying them.

In some ways the Japanese development parallels that of Canada in its attempt to achieve a more mature and rational economic base.

Rapid growth has brought strains which are difficult to overcome. Japan, like Canada, has a balance of payments problem which in times past was cured by a dose of tight money to cut off imports. Now, however, import demand is coming not only from businesses which need goods for expansion but also from consumers. The consumer import demand is hard to check since the Japanese, like Canadians, have a high rate of savings.

Consumer prices in Japan have been rising sharply too — something which may be startling in Canada — and this has led to political troubles which could result in a climate of economic instability.

One can see through this article that under the facade of industrial boom and high employment in Japan, which so impresses the foreign visitor, there are strong currents of economic trouble.

This in turn lends further emphasis to the Japanese demands of recent months that the balance-of-payments situation between Japan and Canada must be achieved through more open markets here for Japanese goods.

W. GERMANS PLAN MILL?

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of the largest paper manufacturers in the European Common Market is reported to be investigating establishment of a pulp and paper mill in the Prince George, B.C., area.

The company is identified as the Feldmühle Aktiengesellschaft of Dusseldorf, West Germany—a company that already buys B.C. pulp. The mill would be built in an area where already an $84,000,000 kraft mill is under construction for the Reed paper group of England and Canadian Forest Products of B.C.

And another $56,000,000 mill will be built there by Northwood Pulp Ltd., a subsidiary of Noranda Mines, and the Mead Corp. of Dayton, Ohio.

Arthur Mayse

We haven't much concerned ourselves with the national defence people's plan to integrate Canada's three services—too busy sweeping up maple leaves—but the other day a rather disconsolate member of our tripartite forces raised the subject in the course of a mug-up with this department.

His uniforms, says he, are growing shiny in the seat, but his wife feels he should postpone replacements.

"I guess she's right," our guy admitted. "After all, who can tell what we'll be wearing a year from now?"

This distressing uncertainty is reflected in odds and ends of gallows humor that drift out to civvie street.

Finally one of the boys delivers his clincher:

"You mean," he demands, "that you wouldn't care if your sister married an army type?"

The displaced chum finished his coffee and, sighing, reached for a cup that's also growing a touch shabby.

"My branch," he confided, "has taken to calling itself 'The Mushroom Flap'. They keep us in the dark, and every now and then someone comes out from Ottawa and sprinkles us with you-know-what."

Matter of fact, the sprinkling doesn't seem to be confined to the military.

How, I ask you, does a policy of national thrift justify a $2,500 French-language entrance sign for a research laboratory on this English-speaking western island?

Let us now pay a call on the boys of St. Margaret's School for girls, a Fort Street landmark which just might manage to replace its white-pillared main building with a new one in a couple of years.

Boys I said, and boys I mean... It sturdy male islets stubbornly anchored in a feminine sea. Here, through kindergarten and grades one and two, they are permitted to remain. Then they must doff their little red blazers with the "SMS" crest, and venture into a new, but not necessarily sterner world.

Meanwhile, as who can blame them, they stick together. No one, not even Ottawa, can force integration upon them.

Junior school classes separate them. But released to the playground they reunite their ranks, a band of brothers addressing themselves to their own manly diversions with a watchful eye on the skirted foe.

All this will change, of course, and no doubt some enchanted evening about 12 years distant one of these selfsame lads will gladly squire a lovely enemy of 1964 to her graduation dance.

Anyway, who knows but what this early schooling in female ways and wiles will serve them well in a world that grows more matriarchal each year?

My car, which has been dragging its wheels about getting a dose of anti-freeze, is chilly as an icebox these brisk mornings, and I find myself remembering nervously what happened on Remembrance Day of 1955.

It was cold at the forenoon Cenotaph Services, with a flurry of snow to harry the marching veterans.

As the day progressed, the cold grew ever more bitter, striking treacherously in an autumn which had been unusually mild.

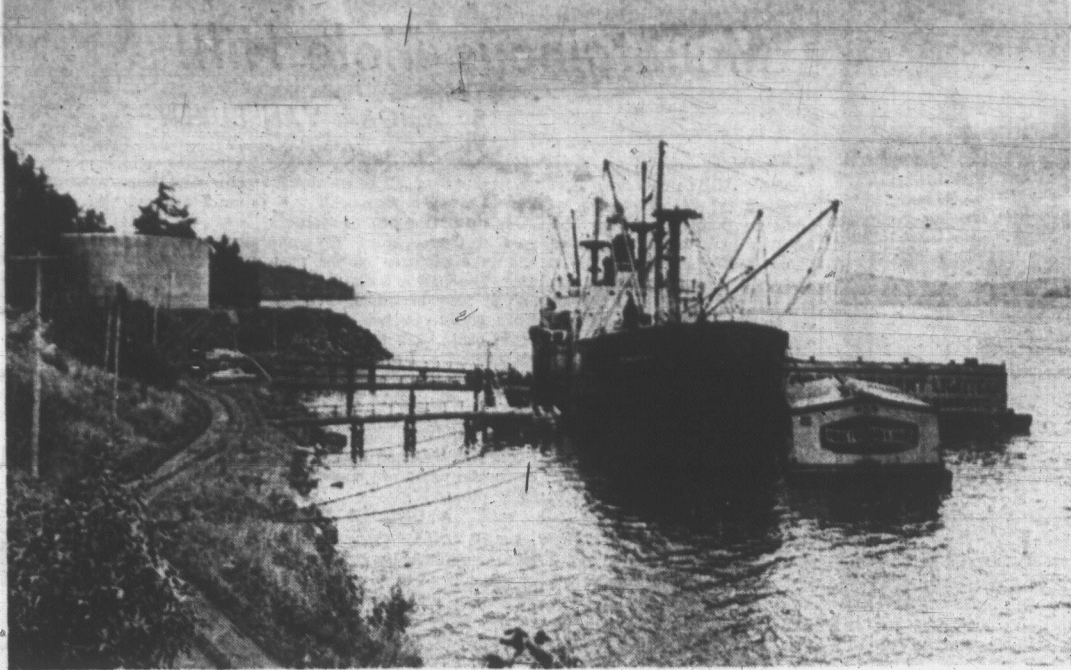

By mid-evening, garagemen were dispensing anti-freeze on an emergency basis. Even so, the bleak morning light of Nov. 12 found many an unwary motorist bawling a cracked engine block.

In that one night, most of Victoria's tender Monterey cypress hedges were killed from tip to root. The sap, still in twigs and trunk, exploded the tissues when it froze.

A snowfall which racked up $2750 in removal fees added to Victoria's tribulations, and the fact that we'd shattered the all time November low-temperature record with overnight drops to 20 and even 12 degrees above zero was cold comfort.

This year, weatherman Bill Mackie tells me, we can anticipate a cool and mostly cloudy Remembrance Day, with nothing to indicate any such sneak-attack as was launched by Old Man Winter nine years ago.

Still, lets keep our fingers crossed, huh?

TAKING ABOARD 7,200 long tons of cement at the B.C. Cement division of Ocean Cement at Bamberton is this 10,000-ton Liberty ship, Evagelistris. Shipment will leave around the weekend for Ceylon where it will be used to build an air field, one of Canada's contributions under the Colombo Plan. Works manager Roderick Muirhead thought it was the first time such a big shipment had been sent from this area. His company won contract tendered by federal transport department.

$3 Million, 320 Workers Solution to Hospital Woes

By PETE LOUDON

Greater Victoria hospitals require $3 million and 320 additional employees.

That's what it will take to provide 160 more beds and wipe out a waiting-list affecting some 1,300 residents to a greater or lesser degree.

That's the finding of a committee studying the bed shortage which has inflamed this area recently.

It was submitted to Greater Victoria Hospital Administrators' Council today by committee chairman John S. Holdstock, Queen Alexandra Solarium administrator.

Mr. Holdstock told the Times that his report merely blocks out the problem.

But he has recommended formation of a metropolitan hospital council to find the answers.

This solution was immediately interpreted by one section of government as a spur to local municipal planners now tangling with the proposed formation of a form of semi-metro government in Greater Victoria.

"There's no question about it. That's the answer," said Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

"This was a suggested function of the Joint Services Council (the formal name of the proposed semi-metro body)."

"We welcome the report and hope the municipal leaders will see fit to act on it," Mr. Campbell added.

Mr. Holdstock's committee was formed on suggestion of Health Minister Martin in June.

Although some 1,300 persons

are known to have need of hospital services, only about 700 are in the urgent category and less than 100 are classed as emergent.

The report didn't say so, but it is presumed that if 160 beds were available, and staffed, the whole list would disappear in three and a half months.

There is room for 80 of the 160 necessary beds at Royal Jubilee and room for another 20 at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Provision of the whole 160 and related services would mean an expenditure of about $3 million, says Mr. Holdstock.

STAFF PROBLEM

Mr. Holdstock agrees that the most difficult problem will be that of acquiring staff—about two people per bed. About 45 per cent of this additional staff of 320 must be highly trained in nursing or technician fields.

"We have just been able to open a door, and I would have liked to have had time to look behind it."

"It is dead easy to build beds but we must know what type we need, where they should be located, how they should be staffed and serviced."

In unorganized areas of B.C., the provincial statutes provide for creation of hospital improvement districts—fund-raising groups which take the load from hospital boards in dealing with the community. But there is no district organization for Victoria, lower mainland which have 50 per cent of the beds.

Here is where a metro planning board must take up the slack, according to many hospital authorities.

$1.5 MILLION

In this area, the $3 million price tag for provision of the needed beds would mean a bill of $1.5 million for the participating municipalities, the remainder of the cost being met by the federal and provincial governments.

If semi-metro never comes about and the need is met by those urban areas which have financed hospital construction locally in recent years, the breakdown of sharing would be expected to parallel that of 1962.

On a per capita basis, Victoria would provide 43.24 per cent of the pot, Saanich 33.28, Oak Bay 14.28 and Esquimalt 9.19 per cent.

Divers Abandon Search for Body Off Brochie

The mystery of whether or not a woman's body lies in deep water off Brochie Ledge is still unsolved today after Royal Canadian Navy divers had to discontinue their search Monday.

The divers found the area of their search to be more than 200 feet deep—greater than the level at which they can dive safely.

The divers were called in by RCMP after a city fisherman hooked a heavy object on his line Sunday morning. The object slipped off his tackle but when he brought up the line he found a brassiere attached to it.

He threw it back in the sea but later reported his find to police.

RCMP said this morning that a decision will be made later this week on whether the search will be continued using more elaborate equipment.

BUSY TIME FOR ALUMNI

Students are taking the lead in homecoming events lined up for this weekend at University of Victoria.

Notices have gone out to 300 alumni reminding them of dances, special features, sports and the installation of university president Dr. Malcolm Taylor.

The installation Saturday at 2 p.m. will be highlight of the homecoming, and will include full academic regalia and procession, plus the conferring of four honorary degrees.

FATALITY HEARING ADJOURNED

An RCMP officer who investigated a fatal accident testified Monday that he concluded one car crossed a double-solid line before it hit the other vehicle.

Constable W. T. Hilcoat said he decided to charge the driver of the car, Joseph Chambers, 30, of 857 Westing Road, with impaired driving.

This charge was later withdrawn and a new one of criminal negligence laid against Chambers. The officer was giving evidence at the preliminary hearing of this charge.

Leading Seaman Warner Shick, 30, of HMCS Naden, lost his life in the crash at Craigflower and Aral early on the morning of Oct. 24.

A passenger in Shick's vehicle, John Merrifield, 532 Forward, said he got the impression that Shick made a sudden turn to the right just before the impact.

The hearing was adjourned to Nov. 12 when Crown prosecutor Louis Lindholm indicated he will call two more witnesses.

TOPICS of the DAY

Raymond Warburton, 19, of Kemp Lake Road, was fined $400 in Socke RCMP court Monday for impaired driving.

Warburton admitted travelling up to 70 miles an hour in a 40 zone just before he was involved in a rear-end collision with another car on the Socke Road near Saseenos.

The car he struck was shoved across the road into an oncoming vehicle.

Magistrate Eugene Murphy prohibited Warburton from driving for a year.

Miss Mary Saich, consultant in the primary department of the Greater Victoria School Board will discuss the new reading program for Grade 1 at the Craigflower PTA meeting, tonight at 8 p.m. in the school.

Victoria Riding Academy is holding a show at its Cedar Hill Cross Road grounds on Remembrance Day to which outside competitors will be welcome, manager Don Carley said today.

The show will start at 1 p.m. and will include saddle classes, maiden jumping, western class, pair jumping and junior and senior hunter events.

B.C. Hydro executive director William C. Mearns will speak on Peace Power Development at an inter-club meeting of 10 Kinsmen groups from Lower Vancouver Island and the mainland tonight.

The meeting is set for 8:30 in the Sidney Kinsmen Club Hall on Patricia Bay Airport grounds.

$4,270 Stolen From Safe

Thief Knew Combination Say Police

A thief who knew the safe combination stole $4,270 from the Victoria office of B.C. Central Credit Union over the weekend.

The robbery was reported by city police this morning.

Police said they are satisfied that the safe was properly locked at close of business Saturday.

The money was discovered missing Monday morning. There was no sign of forced entry to the office or the safe.

Mrs. Mabel Rye, the credit union's office manager, said only union employees have legal knowledge of the combination that opens the safe.

MANY HAVE KEYS

She said keys to the office however are held by many people.

B.C. Central Credit Union is a clearing house and "mother" credit union to smaller unions throughout the province.

Its Victoria office at 1411 Blanshard also serves as offices for Victrol Credit Union, Co-Op Insurance, C.U. & C. Health Services and IWA Credit Union.

KNOWLEDGEABLE

City police are working on the theory that the robbery was committed by someone who knew a lot about the credit union's operations.

Detectives worked on the case all day Monday and were interviewing more people today. A spokesman said several persons they want to interview are out of town.

Mrs. Rye said a safe expert told her Monday it would be easy for someone to determine the combination by watching the safe being opened.

IN OPEN

She said the safe is deliberately placed where it can be seen by passers-by. Anyone standing outside the window could see it being opened.

But Mrs. Rye said union personnel have been told never to open the safe if they see anyone looking in the window.

She said the loss is fully covered by insurance.

Library to Close Remembrance Day

The Victoria Public Library will be closed all day Wednesday for the Remembrance Day holiday.

CRUMP WON'T SAY

'Drastic Surgery' Facing Empress?

By ROGER STONEBANKS

If the Empress Hotel is going to get the axe, Canadian Pacific Railway officials aren't saying.

Board chairman N. R. Crump was asked about the hotel's future, with rumors current the company plans to either sell it, or demolish one part and erect a modern motor inn.

He said the hotel-faced problems with the number of motels built recently in Victoria, that the Empress was under study, "but no decision has been made."

"I am hopeful we will retain the Empress in one form or another for some time to come," he said.

Reporters at a press conference immediately asked him if he had doubts about the hotel, but he would only say, "I would rather not go into that."

At a civic reception later, Mayor R. B. Wilson said "drastic surgery" may be needed to put the Empress in a profitable position.

"But we do hope that the changes will not destroy the atmosphere that has been so symbolic of the Empress over the years."

Mr. Crump and 17 directors of CPR held their first board meeting in Victoria Monday. He said the meeting was routine and there were no announcements to be made.

He would not say if the company's logging subsidiary, Pacific Logging Ltd., is going to build a pulp mill on the Island.

"We are looking at propositions all the time," he said.

He was "very pessimistic" about the future of railway passenger service.

"I can see no future in railway passenger traffic. Eighty-six per cent of the inter-city passenger miles is by car."

"A lot of us might live to see the complete elimination of it." It "could well be" that rapid transit service would be left to Canadian National and how long the trans-continental service would run "is a question."

He emphasized that trains wouldn't disappear because of the importance of freight. There weren't many passenger trains left anyway, and freight boosted the railway division of the company into its biggest profit-making section.

ENCOURAGING

A CPR vice-president, Ian Sinclair, said—the company planned to expand its aerial fertilization program to speed growth of trees in the Lake Cowichan area.

A controlled experiment was made last year and an operational experiment this year. Progress was "most encouraging."

In other matters, Mr. Crump said CPR is "very interested" in the bulk carrier ship field and contracts for two 65,000-ton carriers in Japan should be completed by the end of 1966.

Use of pipelines to transmit solid objects "might very well be interesting."

Asked to give his business forecast for next year, he said every indication showed a 6 to 7 per cent increase in gross national product over 1964.

The CPR directors left today for further meetings in Vancouver.

Teachers Pick Woman Arbiter In Pay Dispute

Greater-Victoria Teachers' Association today named retired salary negotiator Mrs. Hazel Hodson as arbiter in their contract dispute with school trustees.

Conciliation proceedings entered into last week collapsed Monday night with teachers and trustees separated by a gulf of about 3 per cent on the salary scale.

Trustees were to meet tonight to appoint their arbiter. Between the two appointees a third person will be named as chairman of the arbitration board, or failing agreement on a chairman, he will be named by an outside party.

'UNLOADED GUN' BLAST JUST MISSES NEIGHBOR

A woman quietly doing needlework in her home Monday night came within four feet of being shot by a bullet that was accidentally fired in another house 130 feet away.

Mrs. A. J. Muddle, 344 Vincent, was sitting in the kitchen when the shot came through the door of her house.

It passed four feet from her, went through a wall and hit the bathtub in an adjoining room.

Saanich police discovered the shot came from the home of Alex Dobbie, 325 Walter.

Police said Mr. Dobbie was showing a .300 rifle to Ronald Gill, 37 Gorge. He was demonstrating it with a scope and without one.

Police said the trigger must have been squeezed accidentally. Both men told police they were not aware the gun was loaded. It left the Dobbie home through a veranda wall and travelled 130 feet into the Muddle household.

'Political Courage' Needed for Merger

A merger of Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Air Lines would "take a lot of political courage," Air Canada president Gordon McGregor of Montreal said today.

"But I am sincerely convinced this is the right answer," he said before speaking to the Kiwanis Club at noon in the Empress Hotel.

Such a merger would result in "tremendous economies" and remove duplication of functions among the two air lines.

It just wasn't true that without internal competition prices would go up.

"That's just a philosophy of management," he said.

LOWER FARES

"One effect would probably be a lowering of fares."

Such a merged air line "could be owned by anybody." It could be government-owned, privately-owned or a combination of both, like KLM in Holland.

If the government didn't have ownership it wouldn't result in the private air line dropping uneconomic routes because the government controlled the air lines anyway through licensing.

Mr. McGregor didn't think Air Canada would drop its feeder service into Victoria because of "tough" ferry competition because it was a good service to trans-continental flights.

"Like most short runs it probably loses money but you have to credit some revenue from trans-continental flights to feeder operations," he said.

PREMIUM FARE

He saw the future of super-sonic airliners as providing a swift blue ribbon service at a premium fare.

There would be more comfort and improvements in reservations and ticketing in the future, and "quite soon" it would be possible to walk into an airplane without going out doors.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE

Bravery Citations Urged For City, Oak Bay Firemen

Four Greater Victoria firemen, two each from Oak Bay and the city, have been recommended for St. John Ambulance awards for bravery.

The names will not be released until the recommendations have been approved by the St. John Ambulance Grand Priory in England.

The Oak Bay firemen were cited for "remarkable gallantry and courage" in the rescue of three-year-old Theresa Harding from the basement of her burning house at 1899 Four Bay Road, Oct. 5.

Although the girl was alive when taken from the fire, she died a few hours later in hospital.

PORT OF VANCOUVER MARKS 100TH BIRTHDAY

VANCOUVER (CP)—The port of Vancouver celebrated its 100th birthday Monday.

The event was marked by the dedication of a park in North Vancouver and presentations to captains of the deepsea vessels in port.

LAND FOR BLACKTOP Beware of WAC NWT Meet Told

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP)—An appointed member of the Northwest Territorial Council said Monday that Premier Bennett of British Columbia was trying to grab off a large piece of Canada's northland "in exchange for a few miles of blacktop."

Stuart Hodgson of Vancouver, speaking on opening day of the week-long council here, advised northerners to be very careful about accepting Mr. Bennett's offer to spend $300,000,000 on roads in the Yukon territory and the Mackenzie section of the Northwest Territories if they would become part of British Columbia.

EXCELLENT EXAMPLE

The outspoken financial secretary of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) also called on council "to follow the excellent example of the federal government and give the territories a minimum hourly wage of $1.25 an hour." He also called for a revision of labor laws in the North which he said were outdated.

Mr. Hodgson said Mr. Bennett should think of putting more roads, hospitals and schools in his province.

"Some areas have lots and others have none," he said. "It depends where you live and how you vote."

He said it wasn't inconceivable that Mr. Bennett would sell much of the North's water resources to the United States to finance the roadwork.

"If Mr. Bennett really had the good of the North at heart, he should donate $1,000,000 for roadwork here with no strings attached."

"Canada has spent millions in the north as well and will have to spend millions more," Mr. Hodgson said.

"But is it not better at the end to be masters of your own house than to be dependent on the cure-alls of a medicine man from the West Coast?"

BUSINESS VIEWS

Critical Period for Japanese

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

Several months ago a group of Vancouver Stock Exchange officials visited Japan and came back with glowing reports of investment opportunities in the land of the rising sun.

They were enthusiastic about common stock yields ranging as high as 22 per cent, growth possibilities and signs that the Japanese stock markets appeared to be recovering from a steep three-year-long plunge.

Judging from a feature article in the current issue of Business Week magazine, however, it appears that the Vancouver visitors to Japan were overly optimistic about the Japanese situation.

The article is of particular interest to British Columbians since Japan is a major customer for the output of B.C.'s mines and has been a supplier of large amounts of capital for development.

It points out that while the Japanese economy is thriving, it is also going through a critical period. Business output is high and capital investment is strong, but corporate profits are being squeezed, bankruptcies among small and medium-sized companies are piling up at record rates and surplus goods are choking the market.

Accompanying these conditions there has been a sharp fall in stock prices which, says Business Week,

"is flashing a warning for the stock to see."

The stock price fall has been so drastic, indeed, that the government has had to put a floor under the market in order to keep it from complete collapse. The Bank of Japan has made special two-month loans available to the credit agency of the Tokyo Stock Exchange which will in turn be made available to securities firms to finance stock purchases to buoy up the market.

The government has also banned new capital issues of more than $850,000 until February and for the following six months special permission will be needed for new stock issues. No dividends can be paid by any company not already paying them.

In some ways the Japanese development parallels that of Canada in its attempt to achieve a more mature and rational economic base.

Rapid growth has brought strains which are difficult to overcome. Japan, like Canada, has a balance of payments problem which in times past was cured by a dose of tight money to cut off imports. Now, however, import demand is coming not only from businesses which need goods for expansion but also from consumers. The consumer import demand is hard to check since the Japanese, like Canadians, have a high rate for savings.

Consumer prices in Japan have been rising sharply too — something which may be startling in Canada — and this has led to political troubles which could result in a climate of economic instability.

One can see through this article that under the facade of industrial boom and high employment in Japan, which so impresses the foreign visitor, there are strong currents of economic trouble.

This in turn lends further emphasis to the Japanese demands of recent months that marked improvements in the balance-of-payments situation between Japan and Canada must be achieved through more open markets here for Japanese goods.

Active trading in mines continued today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange but, for the second consecutive day, the market was generally weaker.

In Toronto, the market continued to suffer from profit-taking — during moderately heavy trading.

Both in Montreal and New York reported stocks at a fractionally lower level in active trading.

IN TORONTO among industrials, B.C. Telephone and Imperial Oil each lost a point to 65½ and 58, as Levy Industries fell ½ to 14½ on news of lower nine-month earnings. Bell Telephone fell ½ to 61½ after trading at its high of 62½, while Abitibi, Alberta Gas Trunk and Bank of Montreal each declined ¼ to 14, 37 and 68½. MacMillan Bloedel fell ¼ to 35½.

On the plus side, Shell Oil and Toronto-Dominion Bank each rose ½ to 20 and 69½, the former at its high as Trans Mountain Pipe rose ½ to 22½ and Industrial Acceptance ¼ to 26.

Among speculatives, Consolidated Rambler rose 13 cents to $2.07 and Anglo Roytin seven cents to $1.40 while Text Sol lost two cents to 73 cents and Camflo three cents to $2.97.

AT NEW YORK volume for the day was estimated at 4,800,000 shares compared with 4,570,000 Monday.

Motors, rails and steels headed the downturn after early trading, in which the market kept on an even keel.

A two-point drop by General Motors set the pace for the decline in auto shares. Ford and Chrysler each fell more than a point.

'Special Fund
Could Absorb
Transit Losses'

VANCOUVER (CP)—An accountant testified Monday that B.C. Hydro has a contingency fund of almost $49,000,000 that should be used to absorb transit losses.

He said Hydro's proposed 10-cent bus fare increase is unwarranted.

Lionel Kent of Montreal, who was a financial advisor in court action challenging the government takeover of B.C. Electric, appeared before the Public Utilities Commission as a witness for 10 Greater Vancouver and Victoria municipalities fighting the proposed fare increase.

He said Chief Justice Sherwood Left, in establishing a value for B.C. Electric shares, took into account losses sustained by BCE transit operations.

If the losses had not been taken into account, the final compensation for shareholders would have been $18,200,000 more.

He said this sum is, in effect, available to B.C. Hydro for reducing losses it inherited when it became the government-owned successor to BCE.

The sum, plus an account of $30,771,000 designated as "stabilization of rates and contingency reserve" could be used to absorb transit losses.

Mr. Kent also said Hydro has improperly included $454,100 in its costs for amortization or write-off of an old street railway system.

"Hydro has nothing to write off," he said. "It never made the investment in the first place."

One mudslide sluiced down a fire-denuded canyon and into a residential street, sweeping a fleeing housewife with it.

Police say Mrs. Almee Miller may have been carried three-quarters of a mile and entombed in a catch basin—along with cars, furniture and house-mass of mud.

Her husband, William, 49, singer Frank Sinatra's accompanist, tried to save his wife from their crumbling home, and also was swept away. Firemen rescued him as he clung to a car in the swirling flood.

Their daughter, Meredith, 17, climbed uphill to safety as the family's canyon home twisted and cracked under the onslaught of mud.

The Miller home was destroyed and eight others damaged in the Verdugo Hills section of Burbank, a Los Angeles suburb, which is near the scene of a major brush fire in the foothills last spring.

"All it takes is a good down-pour on open ground, where the native brush has been burned away," a weather bureau official said. "The water runs off, instead of sinking in. Even a moderate, localized shower can cause severe damage in the areas below."

Monday's rains were accompanied, in West Los Angeles and coastal regions, by a tornado—a rarity in southern California—which shredded patios, unshingled roofs, faced a house trailer in the opposite direction and scattered a manufacturer's store of 40,000 artificial Christmas trees over a three-block area.

'Give Us Rice
Or Shoot Us'

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Shastri's food rationing program in the Indian Communist stronghold of Kerala State appeared shattered today. Looters demanding rice roamed large areas.

The situation held grave political implications for Shastri, who last week overruled advisers' warnings that the government machinery was too inefficient to handle rationing for Kerala's 20,000,000 people.

Shastri had hoped rationing in Kerala would point the way to solving the critical food shortages in other parts of India. But with normal marketing systems disrupted, rice and wheat all but disappeared from the shops. The government now is considering an airlift of rice. Students led food riots throughout the state. The rioters stoned officials and police and looted shops, shouting "give us rice or shoot us."

Mobs of 1,000 or more students marched in the state capital, Trivandrum, near the southern tip of India. Police used tear gas and clubs on demonstrators in Quilon. One crowd looted a passenger train at Kundara.

Kerala has been a Communist stronghold since India gained independence in 1947, and it appeared to be only a matter of time before the Communists made some move to take advantage of the riots, as they have in other sections recently.

Pension Plan Unveiled

OTTAWA (CP)—The third version of the complex Canada Pension Plan took legislative form Monday in the Commons. It is a brute of a bill, a half-inch thick and packed with implications for the lives and livelihood of 5,000,000 Canadians.

Introduction of the 125-section bill, one of the longest and most complex pieces of legislation ever seen in Parliament, came after a four-hour debate on the preliminary resolution stage during which opposition MPs pledged careful scrutiny but voiced no immediate objections.

These are the next steps:

Second reading, or approval in principle, will be sought in the Commons. At this stage government speakers will deal with the financial and economic underpinning of the scheme.

Next step is to set up a joint Senate-Commons committee to study the bill in detail. It will have before it the detailed actuarial and economic reports.

If both houses of Parliament subsequently give the bill final passage, the legislation will take effect in 1966 and will apply everywhere except in Quebec, which will have its own similar plan, or in any other province that sets up substantially the same scheme.

PLAN COMPULSORY

The federal plan will be compulsory for an estimated 4,500,000 to 5,000,000 Canadians. Forced to contribute will be all employees over 18 earning more than $50 a month or $600 a year, and all self-employed persons taking in more than $800 annually.

Rates of contributions and benefit levels are the same as those spelled out in the government's white paper last August. Briefly, the plan would start this way:

The first $600 of annual earnings is exempt. On the rest up to a $5,000-a-year maximum, the contribution rate is 3.6 per cent. This is shared equally by employees and employers but paid alone by the self-employed. For an employee earning at least $5,000 it means payments of $6.60 a month. These start in 1966.

Full benefits begin in 1976, though some are available at reduced levels in the first 10 years. The benefits will come in one cheque but take two forms: the contributory pension, plus the flat-rate old age security pension financed as at present out of taxes.

At age 65, a person retiring becomes eligible for the contributory pension which is 25 per cent of the average earnings on which contributions are made. Thus a person earning as much or more than the $5,000 income ceiling would receive about $104 monthly.

SECOND PENSION

In addition, the old age security payment which now is $75 a month at age 70 can be claimed, in reduced amounts, starting at age 65. It would be $51 at age 65. Thus a person retiring at age 65 would get a total of $155. If he waited until he was 70, he would get $179 a month.

This is how benefits will be paid in the 10-year transition period between 1966 and 1976:

After one year of operating the plan, a person who has contributed in 1966 and is 68 in 1967 will get a pension equal to 10 per cent of the full level. In each subsequent year, the age comes down until age 65 is reached in 1970 and at the same

MOTHER, 7 CHILDREN
AGAIN FLEE FLAMES

AMID RUINS of his neighbor's fire-destroyed garage stands Suren Sather, 2743 Victor, credited by Fire Chief John Abbott with saving two of the seven children of Mrs. Christine Crosby, 2741 Victor. It is her second home in six months ruined by fire. (Times photo.)

Officials Study
Arson Possibility

By LESLIE MILLIN

Christine Crosby and her seven children are again homeless because of fire.

A neighbor saved two of Mrs. Crosby's brood from the fire that ripped through their home at 2741 Victor just before 3 a.m. today.

Mrs. Crosby moved into the house this summer after a fire destroyed her last home at 1020 Queens on July 2.

"It's just terrible, to happen again so soon," she told the Times this morning.

The fire began in a garage near the house, and wind carried the flames to ignite the house's shingled exterior.

Wood had been stored in the garage.

ARSON?

The fire department would not say how the fire began, but it is understood that the possibility of arson is being investigated.

The fire loss was estimated by Fire Chief John Abbott at about $3,000.

Suren Sather, 2743 Victor, carried two of the children from the burning home while flames charred the gable of his own next-door home a few feet away.

Mr. Sather, who will be 66 on Thursday, beat on the Crosby front door to rouse the family as his wife phoned the fire department.

"She came to the door crying 'Save my children,'" Mr. Sather said.

'PRETTY HOT'

"I ran into the back bedroom looking for kids, and it was getting pretty hot in there."

"I pulled one of the smallest ones out of a bed, then happened to look in another bed across the room, and there was another one, so I carried both of them out."

Mr. Sather was awakened by his wife, who saw light flickering on their bedroom wall from the flames outside the window.

She had been awakened by the noise, which she first thought was hail.

He paused only long enough to pull on his trousers before running out to investigate.

"There was no one around when I got home at about 12:15 or 12:20—it was as quiet as in the grave," he said.

Mrs. Crosby said this morning "I wasn't doing much thinking at that hour."

"My eldest boy, Johnny, woke me up when he heard the knocking at the door."

"He didn't know what it was, but he knew something was wrong."

Mrs. Crosby's other six children are:

Christine, the baby, 1; twins Penny and Paul, 2; Timothy, 3; Deborah, 6; and Robert, 7. Johnny is 10. He would not

Comox
N-Arms
Delayed

OTTAWA (CP)—Completion of four nuclear storage dumps in Canada for RCAF Air Defence Command, originally scheduled for Oct. 30, has been delayed a "few months," the defence department says.

The dumps are being built at Comox, Chatham, N.B.; Bagotville, Que., and Val d'Or, Que.

They will hold the Genie nuclear rockets for Voodoo jet interceptors. The cost is $2,026,661.

A spokesman for Comox said today the warheads are expected to arrive "sometime in the New Year."

Most of the U.S. personnel, who will be responsible for the warheads, already have arrived at the base.

Informants said the delay means the Voodoos will be unable to assume a nuclear role until next spring.

REACTION TO BYELECTION

NDP Win 'Indicates Trend' Says Douglas

OTTAWA (CP)—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said Monday night there are 40 to 50 constituencies in Ontario which might have produced the upset victory of the NDP in Waterloo South riding.

(See story page 3.) He told reporters that while he isn't predicting NDP victories in that many ridings in the next general election, the resounding defeat of the Liberal candidate and the smashing victory for the NDP "indicates a trend."

"We fought the election by saying that Waterloo South had a chance to speak for all the people of Canada in telling Parliament to get down to some bread-and-butter issues. The voice of the electorate in this matter has been heard, and I hope it will be heard by Parliament."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said through a spokesman that he was naturally disappointed at his party not regaining the old Conservative seat.

The imposition of a candidate by the Liberal party brass—the personal choice of the prime minister—drove many Liberal voters into the NDP camp, giving the NDP the necessary majority by combined support," he said.

National Liberal organizer Keith Davey said in a statement the byelection results represent a repudiation of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's obstructionist tactics in the Commons.

Among political observers, the NDP victory in Waterloo South had more significance than the official spokesmen for the parties appeared ready to admit yet.

The byelections were regarded as a test of the NDP attempts to find a middle ground between the contending Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

NDP sources here said their campaign centred on the theme that the Conservatives proved inadequate to govern from 1957-62 and the Liberals were proving no more effective.

In addition, the British Labor party's general election victory may have convinced some voters that if the usually stable British voter could give Labor his confidence the New Democrats, who have a kind of affinity for the British Labor party, might be tried.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.
A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.
One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.
Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.
This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.
In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.
Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).
Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

Will we ever use up all the air?

Fresh air is a mixture of gases, most of which do us no harm and help us only indirectly. The bulk of the mixture is nitrogen, a lazy gas that tends to blanket fires and slow down burning processes of all kinds. Without all this nitrogen, forest fires would blaze away uncontrolled and our bodies would burn up their fuel at a furious rate. If all the nitrogen were not present in the air, most likely the earth would have become a cinderly pile of charred rubble long ago.
Argon and neon gases, krypton and xenon are present in the air in tiny traces. These rare and lazy gases seem to do us no good and no harm. The vital gas, needed to sustain both plant and animal life, is oxygen. And the plant world as well as the animal world uses up countless tons of this precious gas every hour of every day and night. It is natural to wonder how long the present supplies of precious oxygen will last us.
If no fresh oxygen were added to the air, the present supply might last only a few weeks or months. All the air, as far as we are concerned, would be used up in less than a year. But this cannot happen. At least it cannot happen as long as there are grassy meadows and leafy woods, thick evergreens and dense jungles. For countless tons of fresh oxygen are poured into the atmosphere by the plant world every day.

Plants Provide Oxygen

Respiration is the breathing process by which we take in oxygen and return carbon dioxide to the air. Plants also carry on respiration. But during the daylight hours they also carry on the process of photosynthesis. This is the magic recipe for using sunlight to make plant food from air and water. To make it work, green plants must take in carbon dioxide and return oxygen to the air.
The earth's green foliage uses the waste carbon dioxide given off by both the plant and animal world. During the daylight hours of photosynthesis it returns oxygen to the air—more oxygen than the plant world needs. The air, then, will never be used up as long as there are green plants, water and sunshine upon the earth.
The air is replenished with oxygen by a process of give-and-take between the plant world and the animal world. The plants, perhaps, could manage without us. In their own process of respiration that goes on day and night they provide some of the carbon dioxide they need for photosynthesis during the daylight. But we would perish without the oxygen they supply—and so would the animals. In return, we let the plant world have all our waste carbon dioxide that they can use.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Robert Messinger, age 11, of Flushing, N.Y., for his question:
Who was captain of the Mayflower?

The little sailing ship was 90 feet long and weighed no more than 180 tons. On Sept. 16, 1620, she set forth from Plymouth, England, bearing a band of pilgrims to a new life in the New World. The master who captained the Mayflower was Christopher Jones, and this Captain Jones owned a quarter share of the ship.
